

CLASS WAR IS SHOWN IN THE HAYWOOD TRIAL

Discussion as to Admission of Miners' Magazine Gives Insight Into the Rocky Mountain Struggle for Gain

(Appeal to Reason Bureau Special to Chicago Daily Socialist.) Boise, Idaho, June 20.—Judge Wood is expected to decide which articles from the Miners' Magazine will be permitted to be introduced as evidence against William D. Haywood some time today.

The presentation of the articles, with the arguments for and against their introduction, consumed virtually all of the session yesterday morning. The Miners' Magazine is the organ of the Western Federation of Miners. The articles which it is in its columns that advice and suggestions were given to desperate men to go and kill the enemies of the organization.

In opposition to Borah's contention Attorney Richardson cited several articles written by A. H. Parsons and others prior to the Haymarket riots of Chicago. He said that many of the anarchist doctrines were directed against society and advocated the violent overthrow of all law and government.

At all times the editor and contributors advocated the peaceful revolution of existing conditions through the legal and orderly methods of the ballot. To compare the Miners' Magazine with the Fire Alarm or the Arbeiter Zeitung of Parsons, Spies and Ling, Richardson declared was far-fetched and absurd.

Richardson did not deny that the Miners' Magazine had attacked the strike policies of former Governor Steubenberg, but he did deny Borah's point out a single instance where the magazine advocated or condoned the assassination of the bull-pen governor.

To Borah's declaration that President Boyce of the Western Federation of Miners once advised that the members should purchase rifles and arm themselves, Richardson said that such advice was in strict conformity with the provisions of the federal constitution, which guaranteed the right of the citizen to bear arms.

For the first time the rival merits of the great trial were brought out and the arguments of the two sides were set forth in a clear and concise manner. The trial is a landmark in the history of the labor movement.

RUTH, YOU AND THE BABIES MUST WAIT

Father's Quest of Work Is Over: The Expected Letter Never Will Come

Dear Ruth and Babies: "I have got to get out and get a job in some camp for a while. I can't get anything else to do. Just as soon as I can get work I will send money. This is the best I can do or know what to do—"

The letter stopped there, unfinished, and never was mailed. The man who wrote it lies cold in death on a board in the Cook county morgue, while the county and city authorities are trying to find out who he was.

There is something of mystery attached to the man, who was searching for work, and there are unexplained circumstances connected with his death. A short distance south of Summit, Ill., he was run over by a Chicago & Joliet electric car yesterday morning.

Late in the afternoon he died at the Cook county hospital without regaining consciousness. Just how it happened that the man was on the car track and was hurled beneath the wheels remains unknown.

In an ambulance E. L. Benton, a La Grange undertaker, brought the nearly lifeless victim to Chicago soon after the car struck him and took him to the county hospital.

A short time later the man died. Maybe the body is that of R. C. Donnelly of Collinsville, Ill., but this has not been determined. Papers in his pocket gave this clue to his identity.

Apparently the man was 23 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighed 145 pounds, hair black, curly, face smoothly shaven, eyes dark brown, clothed in brown mixed coat and trousers and wore a blue shirt.

Who was he? What were Ruth and the babies, and what will become of them?

GAMBLING WIDE OPEN IN CHICAGO; EASY TO BET ON THE PONIES

Sample of Republican Reform—Resorts Operate Without Apparent Fear of Prosecution.

In Chicago gambling houses and pool rooms are abundant and run with an apparent regard for laws calling for their suppression.

The chief factors responsible for this highly organized system of lawlessness are: a corrupt or negligent police administration, the Chicago Telephone company and the capitalist newspapers of the city.

Backed by this imposing array of champions the pool room operator is assured safety from law and order leagues, prosecuting attorneys and the occasional "squealing" victim.

No attempt is made to hide either the taking or paying of bets. There seems to be a tacit understanding among gamblers that under the Busee administration full protection is guaranteed.

Several gamblers so assured the reporter, and as proof cited the fact that no arrests or raids had been made since Mayor Busee took the oath of office.

A place visited was one of Mont Tennes resorts, located at 143 North Clark street.

This sign is magnificently appointed, with a line running the full length of the room. A half dozen pool and billiard tables furnish recreation for gamblers waiting for returns.

Sergeant Miller, Pool Room Sleuth Gets Angry When Information of Law Breaking Is Offered.

He bets; loses. During the monotonous droning of "Tod's" voice, as he announced the results of various races, the Chicago Daily Socialist reporter picked up a copy of Hearst's organ of defence for the oppressed, the Chicago American.

Turning to the sporting page he selected the American's "one best bet" and made his wager upon it. The despair when the "one best bet" was not heard of after the quarter was passed was somewhat mitigated by the fact that about twenty other men in his immediate presence lost considerable on the same "tip."

A dozen or more had placed bets on the horses in the race. After it was over one happy person went forward and "Tod" paid him off. All the others began at once to study the "dope" in the American and Journal for the next race.

To test the accuracy of the gamblers' information that gambling is safe the reporter visited the office of Chief of Police Shippy, only to learn that he was out of town. Recourse to Assistant Chief Schuetler elicited the information that a special "gambling squad" under the general direction of Shippy and the immediate supervision of Sergeant Miller was detailed to suppress gambling wherever found.

Chief Schuetler added: "See Sergeant Miller and if there's any gambling we'll get after them."

When questioned regarding the department's official knowledge of race-track and poolroom gambling in Chicago, Sergeant Miller threw both hands in the air and said:

"Wait till the chief gets back and he'll tell you all about it."

With this he walked out of the office, but because the reporter showed no disposition to leave he finally returned and said:

"Why the hell do you ask me a question like that?"

GIRL SOLD HER SOUL FOR BREAD

Story of One Shop Girl Throws Light on Conditions: a Doctor's Testimony

Alvina Walters, the saleswoman at Mandel Brothers, who died at the Post Graduate hospital Monday from an illegal operation performed by some unknown person, before she was taken to a hospital, for eight years carried on a losing struggle to support herself and her widowed mother.

She lived with her mother in the basement at 3333 Forest avenue and was but 18 years old.

Her mother, a German woman, who cannot speak English, is deaf, and at the inquest held in the Barnes undertaking rooms, at Twenty-second street and Wabash avenue, she did not yet know the cause of her daughter's death.

Other residents of the house where the girl lived stated that she was a quiet girl and a devoted daughter, that she seldom went out and had little company, and all were surprised and shocked at the cause of her death.

The same story was told by the girls who worked with her at Mandel's store.

At Work at 10. The girl had been fatherless since she was 4 years old. When she was 10 she began to help her mother earn a living.

At the inquest yesterday over the body of the girl, the doctor who was called in to treat her after the illegal operation made the startling statement that every week some girl like Alvina Walters comes to him and probably to other physicians, asking to have illegal operations performed.

THIS IS THE SEASON WHEN THE YOUNG GRADUATE "BUTTS INTO" THE COLD WORLD

1st WEEK. At all times the editor and contributors advocated the peaceful revolution of existing conditions through the legal and orderly methods of the ballot.

2nd WEEK. The most interesting feature of the company's management to the other coal operators of the company is doubtless the fact that they do not at present employ any union labor.

It is the proud boast of the company that they have a force of trained and faithful detectives, who have been with them for many years and who are fully acquainted with everybody that comes into the region and are able to tell at once if any man recently employed is a union man or seeking work for any ulterior motive.

Alongside of this policy of the company is the well established and commendable fact that the whole machinery works with but little, if any, friction. The men are satisfied with their hours of labor and the amount of remuneration paid for the same.

PROOF INDISPUTABLE ABOUT FAIRMONT

Coal Trade Paper Confirms Published Reports About the Region. A correspondent of the Chicago Daily Socialist writes regarding an article appearing in "Black Diamond," a coal paper published in Chicago in the interests of the trade.

The article is about the light and fast Fairmont Coal company, in the West Virginia field. That article, in part, says:

"The most interesting feature of the company's management to the other coal operators of the company is doubtless the fact that they do not at present employ any union labor."

TELEGRAPHERS READY FOR GREAT CONFLICT

Plans for the walkout of the wiremen in some large industrial and trading center within twenty-four hours are made.

Unless President Roosevelt or some other powerful influence prevails upon the Western Union to meet the committee of the Commercial Telegraphers' union this country will be the scene of an industrial conflict that will be as far-reaching as any that has occurred in many years.

The history of unionism in the United States.

Just when and where the strike will be called is not made public, but the statement is made that it will come within the next week or ten days.

The decision to strike was announced in a statement given out this morning by Acting President Koenekamp of the union. It says the strike has been approved against either or both the Western Union or Postal companies.

SEEK TO SHATTER FURNACE UNION

Steel Company Prepares to Go After Mahoning Men. Youngstown, O., June 20.—The blast furnace operators of the Mahoning valley are preparing for the strike of the furnacemen which will come, it is said, July 1.

Steel corporation to meet the emergency and more are expected. Most of the men, who will be used in both the trust and the independent furnaces, are from Cleveland.

It is said that to break up the union which has been formed among the furnacemen the Carnegie Steel company will let out all of its men before the time comes for the strike.

The men are demanding an eight instead of a twelve-hour day.

FRIGHTFUL CHARGES AGAINST "HOSPITAL"

Mrs. Brendecke's West Adams Street Place Alleged to Be Un-speakable

Charges of an almost incredible nature against Mrs. Emma Brendecke, proprietor of the alleged private hospital at 229 West Adams street, were unfolded in Judge Chetlain's court yesterday by Mrs. Emma Warner of Moline, Ill. The charges range all the way from performing illegal operations to child murder.

Mrs. Warner heard of the case of a poor girl, Dora Polinsky, who, after the birth of her child, was compelled to perform the most menial labor in the hospital for one year to pay a bill of $15. Mrs. Warner heard of the habeas corpus case instituted for the Polish girl and came here to testify.

She said some time ago she got into trouble and went to the hospital, which poses as a sanitarium, Christian hospital, and employs a lot of other names, and was promised that for $100, they would perform an operation.
