Current Events

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE Monday morning papers carried several important and interesting stories. From the point of view of local or nationalist interest Alfred E. Smith's reply to the question whether allegiance to his church might prevent his full allegiance to the government of the United States comes first. Al replied cautiously and cleverly and convincingly. Al is as patriotic as the best of them and more so. Al is right. His allegiance to his church does not conflict with his duty to American capitalism.

ALFRED E. SMITH, whose reply to the leading question referred to, was written by a Jesuit hand, is as loyal to his government as Mussolini the former atheist is to the capitalist class of Italy. Religion has no more to do with the loyalty of a capitalist politician to the system on which he fattens than has the religion of one of Ford's slaves to do with his wage scale. The catholic church is a powerful ally of capitalism, not only here but in all countries. It supported feudalism with equal loyalty but veered around like a yacht under the direction of a good helmsman when it saw that obstinate opposition to the rising capitalist storm would mean disaster.

YET Al Smith may never occupy the white house as president. Were it a question of a show of hands the men and women who like their beer and wine might give him a majority. But there are more votes in the wide open spaces than most people think. And the millions who believe the pope is out to overthrow a perfectly good capitalist government will not vote for Al. And the fat boys in Wall Street don't particularly care. Al may be the wisest available tool on the political horizon but their system is still sound and if four years from the next presidential election the social weather is stormy a popular fellow like Al will be still available for luring accidents.

ANOTHER sweet bit of news is the Shanghai dispatch that appeared in the N. Y. World from Vincent Sheehan who was Morocco correspondent for the Chicago Tribune until he got himself fired for writing too much of the truth. Sheehan spills the chop suey all over Chiang-Kai-Shek's imperialist uniform and ties the can to him, politically. According to Sheehan, Chiang is a deserter from the Kuomintang, a would-be war-lord who that he could ignore the party and get away with it. As it is he got away with several millions of dollars but is lucky if he retains his head. Practically all the members of the Kuomintang executive are against him and the great majority of the army.

CHIANG-KAI-SHEK staged a fake anti-Bolshevik drive as an excuse to break with the Kuomintang party and become the tail that wagged the dog. But the Chinese masses know that the Communists are the steel rods that run thru their revolutionary organization and keep it firm in its purpose. In order to hold the favor of the masses Chiang had to mouth anti-imperialist slogans much to his disgust. Now he cannot serve the imperialists and continue to agitate the Chinese against the robber sys-

"Big Four" Insurance Directors Elected by Fraud

ARTICLE VIII.—PAST EVENTS OF INSURANCE EXPOSE.

The DAILY WORKER herewith continues its expose of the "Industrial" (weekly payment) insurance trust. Previous articles have dealt with the methods employed by the "Big Four" in misusing "mutual" assets to the benefit of the banks which operate hand in glove with this powerful combine. The Big Four is composed of the Metropolitan, Prudential, John Hancock and the Colonial Life Insurance Companies. Names prominent in financial and government circles have figured largely in the series. Charles Evans Hughes, Governor Smith, Supt. of Insurance James A. Beha, Charles M. Schwab, Alanson B. Houghton and others are among those present.

By CHARLES YALE HARRISON. Haley Fiske, the venerable president of the gigantic Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, recently made a most remarkable discovery. He has come to the conclusion that his 24 million policyholders are all capitalists. He says so in a pamphlet to his defrauded customers entitled, "Your Rights as a Capitalist." Mr. Fiske starts his opus on the newer economics with this statement of fact: "The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has in force more than 35 million policies, insuring 24

MINERS RESENT SUPPRESSION OF MASS PICKETING

Local Union Demands Right to Hold Meeting

NEW EAGLE, Pa., April 18.—The coal and iron police (company police operating under sanction of the state) and the Pennsylvania state constabulary continue to break up picket lines. The miners as continually reform them. There is considerable resentment growing here at the evident intention of the state and county officials to destroy the union, and feeling grows for a labor party, which may stop the use of state power entirely on the side of the coal operators, as at present it is evidently used.

Pass Resolutions. Local Union No. 280, of the United Mine Workers of America, has passed and made public a resolution which expresses the feeling of the working class section of this community, against the action of the sheriff in issuing an order against picketing. The miners feel that to permit the scabs to operate in numbers of any amount, and to allow whole companies of coal and iron police to parade the highways, and at the same time to permit pickets to go in couples only, never so much as three together, is putting it on rather strong. Fight For Living. Their resolution points out that the miners fight for nothing more than a living wage and bearable working conditions, and says: "Whereas, the sheriffs of Allegheny and Washington Counties posted notices throughout the counties prohibiting picketing of the scab mines except in groups of not more than two, and Resolved, that we Local Union 280 of the United Mine Workers of America of New Eagle, Pa., protest against this action of the sheriffs of Allegheny and Washington counties and request that their order be withdrawn and that the scab mines be allowed to be picketed by the union men on strike, and be it further Resolved, that mass meetings be allowed to be held by the unions.

Test Trans-Atlantic Plane. MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y., April 18.—The tri-motored biplane in which Lieutenant Commander Noel Davis expects to attempt a trans-Atlantic flight between New York and Paris, left Mitchel Field at 12:20 today for Langley Field, Virginia, where a series of tests are to be made to determine the plane's fitness.

Kiwar Pasha, Premier Of Egypt, and Entire Cabinet Leave Office

LONDON, April 18.—The Egyptian Government, headed by Premier Kiwar Pasha, resigned today, according to an exchange telegraph dispatch from Cairo. The Kiwar Pasha Ministry, in which Kiwar Pasha, held the portfolios of premier, foreign minister and minister of the interior, was formed March 13, 1925.

15 Workers Join Communist Party At Passaic Meet

(Special to the Daily Worker). PASSAIC, N. J., April 18.—Albert Weisbord addressed a meeting of the labor campaign workers last night at the Workers' Home, 27 Dayton Ave., following it by a speech at the Garden Place, where he spoke from the same platform as the capitalist candidates. Weisbord was given a reception at the Workers' Home last Saturday evening by the Passaic branch of the Workers (Communist) Party. He spoke on the role of the party in the strike declaring that it was due to the impetus given by the Workers Party that the strike was carried on so successfully. Emil Garos, local organizer of the party presided. The other speakers were Simon Smelkenson and Simon Bamback, Weisbord's associate candidates in the campaign for city commissioner; Irving Freiman, Felix Paneris and Tom Garal. Fifteen workers joined the Workers (Communist) Party at the reception.

German Communist Youth And Red Front Fighters Meet Ruthenberg Ashes

HAMBURG, April 18.—J. Louis Engdahl, conveying the bronze urn containing the ashes of Charles E. Ruthenberg for burial in front of the Kremlin wall in Moscow, was met on landing here by a delegation from the Young Communists' congress and the Red Front organizations. A reception takes place today in Berlin.

"Forward" Crimes To Be Related at 3 Meetings Sunday

Spokesmen for the American and Jewish labor movement in New York will tell how the Jewish Daily Forward has been betraying the interests of the workers during many years in three separate halls next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.—The Central Opera House, 67th St. and Third Ave.; New Star Casino, 107th St. and Park Ave.; and Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East 4th St. Will Expose "Forward". Precisely at that hour, too, J. Ramsay MacDonald, just repudiated by the influential Independent Labor Party of Great Britain, will be the "guest of honor" of the "Forward" which is celebrating the 30th year of its existence.

MacDonald, who declined to comment on the notorious Sacco-Vanzetti decision on the pretext that he doesn't want to "interfere in American internal politics," has been brought here by the "Forward" and the reactionary trade-union officials and socialists to assist the white guard, Kerensky, in the campaign to glorify treason to the working class. Indifferent to Verdict. MacDonald's coolness toward the fate of the two framed-up Italian workers is all the more remarkable in the face of the protests against the verdict sent to Gov. Fuller of Massachusetts by practically all leaders of his own party in the British parliament.

A large number of speakers will offer testimony giving exact details of the consistent treachery of the "Forward" in its relation to the workers of America, and particularly of New York. Many Crimes Listed. The indictment against the yellow sheet presided over by Abraham Cahan, contains a large number of important counts. Included among them are: (1) the treachery to cloak-makers in 1912 by the "Forward"—the "Bison affair"; (2) the "Hourwich affair" in 1913-14; the General Strike of 1916; the struggle of the operators in 1917-18; the campaign against the wait-makers in 1920; the campaign against joint agreements in 1922; in the campaign of the Joint Action Committee in 1925; the general strike of 1926, the treachery of the "Forward" toward the furriers during the strike of 1926.

Behind Move to Jail Gold. This culminated in the present attempt to railroad Ben Gold and the 10 other leaders of the furriers to prison, together with 40 other active

ANOTHER REFUGEE

Decisive Defeat of MacDonald Forecasts Defeat of Reaction in the American Labor Movement

To the list of reactionary refugees fleeing from the wrath of the workers they have incensed and finding asylum in imperialist America the name of Ramsay MacDonald must be added.

The working class section of the Independent Labor Party rose in its wrath and repudiated MacDonald and his policies by the astounding vote of 312 to 118. The verdict of the working class delegates to the Independent Labor Party conference must be given the utmost consideration by the American workers. It marks a new phase in the development of the British labor movement, it expresses the rapid swing of the left among the masses which has been going on since the general strike and which now has given to the whole world, by its repudiation of MacDonald, notification that it intends to purge the ranks of labor of the leadership responsible for the betrayal of the miners and the whole labor movement.

The main indictment of MacDonald seems to have been made by Fenner Brockway, secretary of the I. L. P., who at the Brussels Conference Against Colonial Oppression, represented the party officially.

Brockway charged MacDonald with aiding British imperialism and to anyone who has been following the MacDonaldites' policy it is clear that the late leader of the I. L. P. has been of the greatest aid to the tory campaign of aggression in China.

The Daily Telegraph's Peking correspondent was able to report, for instance, that MacDonald's utterances "earn approbation here" and the same imperialist sheet could say editorially that "We are able to quote MacDonald with satisfaction."

On January 21, when the decision of the imperial military conferences to send warships and troops to China had been made, and when troops were already embarking on their mission of slaughter, MacDonald endeavored to quiet mass protest by writing in the official organ of the British labor party, the Daily Herald:

"It may be assumed that there is no intention whatever of any Western or foreign Eastern power fighting the Canton army. It is not there the danger lies."

MacDonald (in company with other reformist leaders of his party) gave unqualified endorsement to the Chinese memorandum of the foreign office—a typical example of slimy British imperialist diplomacy. MacDonald indulged in exclamatory lyricism in praising this document—a document which was part of a foreign office maneuver to halt mass protest and gain time for gunboat movements and troop shipments. Admirable . . . admirable . . . excellent," said MacDonald.

During his term as premier, MacDonald sent gunboats to China and wrote an official letter to the Indian Nationalist

NEWS IN BRIEF Central Labor Union Acts on Globerman's Candidacy This Week

Earl Carroll Improves. GREENVILLE, S. C., April 18.—Earl Carroll, New York Theatrical producer, regained consciousness this morning, according to his physicians. Carroll, who collapsed here last Wednesday enroute to the Atlanta Federal Prison to serve a year and a day for perjury, has been conscious at times for several days.

Cyclone In Sydney. SYDNEY, April 18.—Two persons are dead, three injured, and the lives of 150 passengers aboard the S. S. Riverina were endangered as a result of a cyclonic gale which accompanied the torrential rains sweeping New South Wales for the last three days. The ship was blown ashore west of the Gabo Islands. Its position is dangerous.

Hang Man to Settle Argument. DELAND, Fla., April 18.—Charlie Brown, alias Pisselli, was hanged in the county jail yard here today for the murder of Hotard Usher, Daytona Beach taxicab driver.

Sheriff Stone, after the execution, wired Brown's mother, Mrs. Rignio, in Brooklyn, N. Y., to learn what disposition she wanted made of the body. It marked the last legal hanging in Volusia county and probably in the state. Several times Brown narrowly missed electrocution in the state prison at Raiford, each time a stay being granted on the ground that at the time he was sentenced to die in the electric chair, hanging was the legal medium of execution in Florida.

Central Labor Union Acts on Globerman's Candidacy This Week

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 18.—The law and legislative committee of the Central Labor Council announced they will recommend to that body that the candidacy of Sam Globerman for Board of Education be endorsed, despite the fact that he is known as a Communist.

It is believed the officials take this course and intend to fight against the endorsement on the floor of the council itself, rather than by an unfavorable committee report, for too many unions are behind him which they cannot ignore, as they have a weather eye on the coming June elections for new council officers. They are still trying to get unions to withdraw the endorsement of Globerman so as to strengthen their own position before the next meeting of the Central Labor Council.

Fought By Buzzel. The secretary of the Central Labor Council, J. W. Buzzel, is desperately seeking to prevent the endorsement of Globerman. He appeared before the Carpenters District Council last Monday, and charged Globerman with being a member of the Communist Party; he submitted proof in the form of minutes which a stoop-pigeon of the police department undoubtedly got for him, and attempted to get

CHIANG KAI-SHEK ISOLATED FROM MAJORITY OF KUOMINTANG PARTY

Treachery Causes Sun's Family, Nationalist Leaders, Civilians and Soldiers to Oppose

SHANGHAI, April 18.—General Chiang Kai-Shek, right wing Nationalist general, is reported to be practically isolated in his attempt to split the Kuomintang.

Although no news of the much-advertised "anti-Bolshevik" conference at Nanking has yet reached this city, it is confidently predicted that by the end of this week, Chiang's ambition will lead him into open war not only with the Northerners but with the majority of the Nationalist civilians, a large portion of the Nationalist army and practically all of the Kuomintang leaders. Whether or not Chiang will openly ally himself with the Northern war lords is a problem for speculation here.

Leaders Oppose Chiang. That none of the leaders of the Kuomintang attended the Nanking conference has been definitely ascertained. Not only the Communists in the Kuomintang, but Sun Fo, son of Sun Yat-Sen, Eugene Chen, Nationalist foreign minister, Mrs. Sun Yat-Sen, T. V. Soong, Nationalist minister of finance and Wang Chin Wei, Sun Yat-Sen's disciple, have denounced the Nanking conference as an attempt to split the Nationalist movement.

Chiang Kai-Shek, who has represented the interests of the wealthy bankers and industrialists in the movement, has been led by personal ambition to betray his party, it is believed. Since November Chiang has received more than $90,000,000 from the Nationalist treasury for his northern campaign for which he has rendered no accounting. The attempts of the Nationalist leaders to curb his all-embracing governmental activities and money offered him by native industrialists for suppressing labor unions are reported to have been the causes of his desertion.

Executes Professor. The greatest indignation has been aroused here by reports from Nanking that Hou Shao-hui, a professor in Shanghai University, was executed in Nanking on April 9th at Chiang's orders. Professor Hou was well-known for his left wing sympathies.

In the meantime Chiang Kai-Shek is continuing his raids on labor unions, Swatow reporting raids by his troops resulting in the arrest of the chairman of the General Labor Union and ten other leaders. Reports (Continued on Page Two)

Reed Gets Indigestion; Cause of Adjournment of the Ford-Sapiro Suit

DETROIT, April 18.—A twenty-four hour adjournment was taken at the $1,000,000 Ford-Sapiro libel suit in federal court today because of the illness of Senator James A. Reed, chief of Henry Ford's counsel.

Reed was stricken with acute indigestion on a train nearing Detroit, as he returned from a week-end trip to Washington. The senator was hurried to a hotel where physicians were called to attend him. Counsel for Aaron Sapiro, so-called cooperative king, agreed to the adjournment. Reed has cross-examined Sapiro for the last two weeks.

U. S. Steel Evades Tax By Issuing Millions of New Stock Dividends

HOBOKEN, N. J., April 18.—Stockholders of the United States Steel Corporation, at the annual meeting of the corporation here today, approved the proposed increase in capitalization by voting to issue 2,023,210 shares of new tax free common stock, to be distributed as a 40 per cent dividend to present shareholders.

The officials of the corporation presented proxies for 2,682,255 shares of preferred stock and 4,047,883 shares of common stock. After the distribution of the new shares, the steel corporation will have outstanding 7,533,210 shares of $100-par common stock.

New Japanese Premier To Be Named Tomorrow

TOKYO, Japan, April 18.—A new Japanese premier will be appointed Wednesday, it was expected today, following the resignation of Heiropo Wakatsuki and his entire cabinet. Until the appointment of a successor, Wakatsuki will continue to serve as premier. The resignation of the Wakatsuki cabinet followed action of the privy council in vetoing relief plans for the Bank of Formosa.

HIGH CHURCHMEN DEMAND QUIZ ON SACCO, VANZETTI

Labor Thruout Country Insists on Freedom

BOSTON, April 18.—Bishop William Lawrence of the local Episcopal diocese and four other prominent Bostonians today joined in asking Gov. Alvan T. Fuller to name a commission to inquire into all the vital facts of the case of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, framed-up Italian workers now facing possible death in the electric chair.

Included among the signers with Bishop Lawrence were Roland W. Boyden, F. W. Tassig, Henry J. Burr, and Charles T. Curtis, Jr.

Boston Labor Demands Quiz. Organized labor of Boston has joined in the demand for the freedom of Sacco and Vanzetti with a resolution just adopted by the Central Labor Union here calling upon Gov. Fuller to stay their sentence, and to have a commission appointed to review the evidence in the case, and to free them if the committee's findings favor the defendants.

Resolutions Pour in on Governor DOWELL, Ill., April 18.—Resolutions have been adopted by Local 370, United Mine Workers of America, demanding the "unconditional release" of Sacco and Vanzetti.

EAGLE, Pa., April 18.—Local union 280, United Mine Workers of America today unanimously adopted a resolution calling upon Gov. Fuller of Massachusetts to give full and immediate freedom to Sacco and Vanzetti. It also stated that "great injustice has been done not only to those two men and their families, but also to the entire labor movement of this country."

CLEVELAND, April 18.—Resolutions were last night adopted by the Cleveland local of the American Negro Labor Congress condemning the verdict in the case of Sacco and Vanzetti, and demanding their immediate release.

3 Million Chinese To Be Represented At Labor Congress

BERLIN, April 18. (EP)—Three million members of labor unions will be represented in the 1927 trade union congress in China, according to Chen Kuen, general secretary of the Chinese Seamen's Union, who delivered a lecture in Berlin on the position and tendencies of this movement.

"On May 1, 1924," he said "the first trade union congress was attended by 160 delegates representing 200 unions of some 300,000 members. At the second congress, in May, 1925, the trade unions had a membership of 540,000. This congress was followed by the founding of the All-Chinese Trade Union Center. When the third congress was held in 1926 the delegates represented 1,500,000. This year's congress will represent 3,000,000 members.

With R. I. L. U. "The All-Chinese Trade Union Center is affiliated with the revolutionary Red International of Labor Union. It has not the slightest sympathy with pacifist or reformist principles. However, a united front including all the workers and the bourgeoisie is absolutely necessary at the present moment." This statement was made before it became evident that General Chiang Kai-Shek, backed by the southern Chinese merchants and middle class in general, would repudiate the radical aims of the All-Chinese Trade Union Center and seek to crush the growing power of the trade unions in Shanghai, Canton and other cities.

DOWNFALL OF MacDONALD PRESAGES COLLAPSE OF REACTIONARIES IN AMERICAN LABOR UNIONS

movement which was more brutal, arrogant and threatening than those of his Tory predecessors.

The repudiation of MacDonald is therefore a repudiation of all agents of imperialism in the British labor movement.

The second important charge made against MacDonald was his opposition to the wage policy of the labor movement. The I. L. P. has gone on record for a blanket 20 per cent increase in wages. MacDonald says nothing about a wage increase but talks glibly about the necessity of "stabilizing" British industry.

MacDonald was for the Samuels report which in reality was based on a wage reduction for the miners and his denunciation of Cook and other leaders of the miners centers around their opposition to the Samuels recommendations.

The I. L. P., estimated to have 50,000 members, is the dominant force in the British labor party. Inside of it has developed a left wing, having close connections with the working class in general and the trade unions. It has opposed MacDonald's warfare on the Communists and the National Minority Movement and in the bitter struggle which followed the sabotage of the Scarborough anti-imperialist resolution and the exclusion of Communists following the Liverpool conference of the Labor Party, it has secured a majority. It represents the mass reaction to the pressure of imperialist policy at home and abroad and is eloquent testimony of the magnificent work of the British Communist Party in the labor movement.

The defeat of MacDonald, administered at a time and in a manner which convinces one with a knowledge of the tradition of the British labor movement—its toleration for opposition opinion and desire to let everyone be heard—that the intention of the majority of the I. L. P. delegates was to dramatize their repudiation of his leadership—will give new hope and energy to the left wing in the United States which is facing the heaviest attack in its history.

MacDonald enjoyed almost unexampled prestige at one time. His position seemed to be unassailable. He raved and ranted against the Communists and the left wing and urged their expulsion in the name of "democracy." He was powerful and clever.

But he espoused the cause of the ruling class against the working class and the working class has cast him out to find refuge in the arms of his masters.

Reactionary labor officialdom, just as does the capitalist system it serves, creates the conditions, and the movement, which destroys it, providing there is a revolutionary party to expose it and organize the masses for struggle against their betrayers.

This is the reason why the MacDonalds fight the Communist Party of Great Britain. This is the reason the Sigmans, Wolls, Greens and Cahans fight the Communist Party of America. They know that their acts of treachery cannot be concealed from the workers nor all revolt crushed as long as the Communist Party lives and carries out its historical task.

MacDonald has passed. The Greens, Wolls, Sigmans and Cahans will pass from the scene in America under the pressure of a disillusioned and wrathful working class.

"Forward," MacDonald Both in Bad Fix

cloak-and-dagger by the "Forward" in cooperation with the subcommittee in the American Federation of Labor.

A huge mass of evidence will be offered in addition to these general accusations by the speakers at the three counter-demonstrations to the "Forward" circus to be held next Sunday.

Will Tell Paper's History.

How the paper which was built up by the penials of the workers of this city betrayed them in one situation after another will be related by the spokesmen of the militant trade-unions, by Jewish writers who have exposed from time to time the prostitution of the yellow sheet, and by prominent leaders of the American trade union left wing revolutionary movement, represented by the Workers (Communist) Party.

Many Speakers.

The speakers at the three meetings on Sunday which are expected to draw thousands of New York workers include Moissaye J. Olgin, editor of "The Hammer," Jewish Communist Monthly; Shachno Epstein, editor of "The Freiheit," Jewish Communist daily; P. Yudish, labor editor of "The Freiheit"; Louis Hyman, manager of the Joint Board of the cloak and dressmakers' union; Ben Gold, manager of the Joint Board of the furriers (if he is released from jail by that time); Sasha Zimmerman.

Rose Wortis, Julius Portnoy, A. Gross, S. Liebowitz, S. Lipitzen, Ben Gitlow, Dr. A. Mindel, N. Pollack, Bertram D. Wolfe, William W. Weinstein, William W. Dunne, editor of THE DAILY WORKER, Alexander Trachtenberg, J. Boruchowitz, J. Marmar, Dr. Caspe, A. Zazar.

"Forward," MacDonald, Allies of Imperialism.

There will also be representatives of the Chinese and Indian workers. Members of the rank and file at the various halls will be invited to state their experiences from the floor.

The general tone of the meeting is expected to be that of intense opposition to the present imperialist attitude which MacDonald, his lieutenants, the "Forward" crowd, are following toward the oppressed colonial peoples throughout the world.

Big Passenger Traffic.

Passenger traffic on the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway during March broke all previous records for the month and contributed to a record-breaking first quarter, it was reported today by Leverett S. Miller, President.

In March 1,044,370 passengers were carried, which by comparison with the 885,650 carried during the month in 1926 was a gain of 188,720 or 21.22 per cent.

Leave For Court Fight.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Senators King (D) of Utah, and LaFollette (R) of Wisconsin, left here today for Philadelphia, to participate in the court fight in Philadelphia, in which the Reed Campaign Fund Committee of the Senate is seeking to get control of Pennsylvania ballots in the last senatorial election. Both are members of the Senate Investigating Committee.

Los Angeles Labor for Gliberman, Communist

the carpenters body to withdraw their endorsement of Gliberman, but all he succeeded in getting, was the election of an investigation committee to look into the charges.

Never Denied Membership.

Gliberman issued a statement that he has never denied being a Communist, and he was well-known as such in the local labor movement. He charges that the labor officials are attempting to raise a Red issue because they have no other way of opposing an independent labor candidate who is running on a labor platform and has been endorsed as such by many unions. They are lining up with the police department and the Los Angeles Times, anti-labor sheet, in an attempt to frame up a militant candidate. To this end, the law and legislative committee of the Central Labor Council hauled Wm. Schneiderman, campaign manager, before the committee, questioned him as to his Communist affiliations, and cited the charges made by a reporter of the Los Angeles Times that Gliberman was not a citizen. They evidently fear the results of a test vote in the council on the question of his endorsement.

Form Committee.

Last Wednesday night, a meeting of delegates representing several large unions organized a Trade Union Program Committee whose avowed purpose is to "drive corruption out of the labor movement." With this slogan they are preparing to oust the Buzzel machine in the June election for officers, and are seeking to support a progressive and left wing delegate to the Central Labor Council. At this date, it is difficult to say whether this opposition group represents only another set of reactionaries or whether there are honest progressive elements among them. It is reported that several prominent officials who were active in the Labor Party of 1923, which was knifed by the Horn-Buzzel machine that they are now fighting, took part in this opposition caucus.

Coolidge Snaps at Hoover; Won't Oust Kellogg for Rival

WASHINGTON, April 18. (FP)—Secretary of State Kellogg is not going to resign, and even if he should resign Mr. Hoover will not be made Secretary of State.

Behind that political bomb, hurled from the White House on the afternoon of April 16, is the pent-up irritation of Calvin Coolidge toward a member of his cabinet whose name has been mentioned more and more frequently, in the past three months, as the probable successor to the unfortunate and unpopular head of the cabinet.

No Useless Lies.

The Spokesman did go on to say that Hoover had been one of the most ardent supporters of the Chinese policy pursued by Kellogg, and that in any case the President does not permit a cabinet officer to interfere with the running of another department by the head of that department—that Kellogg is running the State Department, subject only to the approval of his acts by Coolidge. But his denial that there was a split in the cabinet on the Chinese policy, between Kellogg and Hoover, was not convincing.

Hoover Criticizes.

It is notorious in Washington that Hoover for months has been criticizing Kellogg, from the standpoint of American foreign trade. He has been telling his subordinates and friends that the Mexican and Nicaraguan aggressions have been too costly in the ill-will of all of Latin America.

He has been reported as arguing that the American note to the Chinese Nationalists should never have been made the same as the notes of Britain, France, Japan and Italy. Hoover has spoken privately in the tone of a man anxious to get into the State Department, to show the world how to get the maximum business advantage out of diplomacy and naval power.

Cal Suspects.

But Coolidge does not trust Hoover. He looks upon his ambition as pointing to the presidency. Coolidge is not through with that job. He considers any attempt by a cabinet member to get into the presidential race, so long as Coolidge seems to be a candidate, to be ingratitude if not downright treachery. Hence the sudden ill-tempered blast at Hoover.

Now come the anti-Coolidge Republican regulars with a fitting reply. In deep confidence they say to the press that Cal is about to "get his," in the form of an open letter from a group of them, asking him to say where he stands on the third term issue. Nicholas Murray Butler raised that objection some time ago, and National Chairman William Butler was obliged to tour the country to flatten it out. But it is coming back as a challenge.

The Atlantic Monthly forced Gov. Al Smith to make a reply to the question as to whether Smith, if elected president, would permit his religious ties as a Catholic to influence his duty under the Constitution in dealing with Mexico. Smith is about to publish a direct answer to this challenge. The anti-third term Republicans believe that their letter, when published, will compel Coolidge to admit that he is trying to get a third term and that he disapproves of the two-term limit on presidents, or else that he is not going to run next year.

Consider Coolidge Thru

Whether the fine hand of Herbert Hoover is behind this group is a matter for speculation. Sen. Moses of New Hampshire may be one of the promoters, and former Sen. Wadsworth of New York may be another. Dawes will be pleased when the letter comes out. So will Nick Longworth and Frank Lowden. All of these hard-boiled politicians feel that Coolidge should step aside and give them a chance to show how well they can carry out Morgan policies.

Not Too Far West

Coolidge is sufficiently disturbed by the drift of party intrigue to be unwilling to go very far west this summer. His choice of a "western" summer vacation has narrowed down to Minnesota, Wisconsin or Michigan, according to the last inspired rumors. He will not see the Black Hills nor the Rockies. And since the political garbage stirred up by the new inquiry into the Schall senatorial election has tainted the air in Minnesota, it appears reasonably sure that the summer White House will not be located within 150 miles of the Twin Cities.

Farm Propaganda will be carried on during the summer by Sen. McNary of Oregon, who now is thought to be considering an offer of the secretaryship of agriculture, to replace Jardine. The latter has been a sad misfit, and will not be missed when he leaves Washington. If McNary goes into the Coolidge cabinet, he will have to stop talking about his bill for farm relief which Coolidge vetoed with scorn and ridicule.

Hang Grape On Vane's Door.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(FP)—Mm. S. Vane, claiming to be senator from Pennsylvania, has been much upset by discovering grape hung over the door of the office room he now occupies in the Senate office building. Morning after morning the black emblems have reappeared, and no trace of the identity of the jobber has been found.

250,000 Acres to Jewish Settlers, Is Soviet Grant

MOSCOW, April 18.—Over 100,000 hectares of land were allotted to Jewish settlers in 1926, about 25,000 hectares in Crimea and the rest, over 60,000 hectares in Ukraine. The number of Jews who settled in the farms in 1926 reached 5,000 families, 2,546 of which settled in Ukraine. Altogether 10,229 Jewish families were settled on land during the last two years.

On the newly allotted lands there was built, in 1926, with State funds, as well as funds supplied by public organizations and by the settlers themselves, 1,517 houses and 261 wells were dug out, while more than 300 hectares was planted with vine.

On an average, an area of 8.8 hectares was sown by each family.

Nerve System Is Seat of Disease, Professor Claims

LENINGRAD, Mar. 20.—(By Mail)—Professor Speransky, who works in the laboratory of Academician Pavloff, has made an important discovery referring to the study of the causes of diseases of the organism. He introduced vaccines—antidiphtheritic and anti-scarlet fever—into the brain of a rabbit organism, at the same time taking spinal liquid from the vertebral column.

After performing experiments on animals professor Speransky inoculated into the brain of children suffering from a heavy form of scarlet fever anti-scarlatina vaccine in doses of from four to eight grammes. These children recovered.

Professor Speransky has come to the conclusion that the disease infecting the organism is always seated in the central nervous system. The ailment of local organs—lungs, throat, stomach—is only the external manifestation of the nervous disease. Therefore the struggle against any disease must be directed into the domain of the nervous system and the brain.

Workers Party Calls On All to Work for Passaic Labor Ticket

The Workers (Communist) Party, New York District Organization has issued the following statement to all party units on the coming election in Passaic, N. J.:

Dear Comrades:

"We wish to call your attention to the election campaign which has opened in Passaic, N. J. and which will run up to May 13. For this election campaign for commissioners of Passaic, the Party has put up nominations for commissioners which include Albert Weisbord, Simon Bamback and Simon Smelkinson.

"The other candidates running on the capitalist tickets are A. Preiskel, the police commissioner who was responsible for the violence against the strikers and also another candidate who is a prominent manufacturer, running a shop with non-union labor.

Not An Ordinary Campaign

"This campaign is not an ordinary election campaign. With the nomination of Albert Weisbord, the fight takes on a struggle to build the union, against unemployment and against the violence of the police and an agitation for the need of a Labor Party, not only in Passaic but thru-out the country.

"We ask that all units and all members give maximum support to this campaign which will be very short but very intense. We are distributing contribution lists for the campaign which we enclose herewith. We ask that you collect for this campaign in your shops and send it in to the party office. The importance of the campaign is seen in the fact that about 4,000 workers turned out for the first meeting of the campaign and greeted with joy the nomination of the candidates on the Party ticket.

"Do your utmost for this campaign."

Fights to Hang Boy.

JEFFERSON, Ohio, April 18.—Completion of the state's case against Floyd Hewitt, 16-year-old youth on trial here for the murder of Fred Brown, Jr., 5, by Tuesday night was indicated today, as the prosecutor battled desperately to obtain admission of a second signed statement purporting to have been made by Hewitt as evidence. Hewitt is also under indictment for the murder of Mr. Fred Brown, the mother of the child.

The alleged "second confession" was made in the county jail here, after Hewitt had been brought here from Conneaut.

No Snyder Jurymen Yet.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., April 18.—Fifty talesmen were examined today at the murder trial of Mrs. Ruth Snyder and her lover, Henry Judd Gray, accused of beating the woman's husband, Albert Snyder, a magazine art editor, to death, and at adjournment not a single juror was obtained, giving rise to the belief that it may require a week to obtain a jury to hear the case.

Court had been in session from 10:25 a. m. until 4:35 p. m. with an hour out for lunch.

Protests Against Raids.

Protesting against the labor-smashing tactics of Chiang Kai-Shek, workers at Kiu-kiang are holding monster parades.

Smash Anti-Imperialist Meeting.

A huge anti-imperialist demonstration, which was to have taken place at Hongkong on Sunday, was forestalled by Li Chai-sum, right wing commander.

Nationalists Attack Pukow.

Nationalist forces have surrounded Shantung troops at Pukow and heavy fighting is in progress, according to reports received here tonight.

The Shantung forces are putting up a stiff fight and are shelling positions of Nanking, but the Nationalists claim that the Shantung forces will be forced to capitulate soon.

Capture 4,000.

Four thousand northern soldiers, captured in fighting between Pukow and Pengpu, arrived today from Nanking. Nine thousand others will arrive later, Nationalist military chiefs said.

A Nanking dispatch reported the capture of Pengpu by the Cantonese.

The 4,000 prisoners were trapped in an enveloping movement carried out by the Nationalists moving from the Anhwei district several days ago.

Nationalist leaders are planning to send all the prisoners to Pukien later enrolling them in the Southern army.

French police boarded the steamship Chenoneaux and arrested five Chinese Communists.

Report Move Against Chiang.

LONDON, April 18.—The Hankow government has sent 7,500 troops to Kiu-kiang to meet any hostile force that Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek might move against the Hankow-controlled branch of the Southern army, said a Central News dispatch from Shanghai today.

The Fighting Marines.

A number of United States sailors, British soldiers, French marines and Dutch sailors staged an international free-for-all battle in Numm's cafe in the international settlement last night.

Bottles, tables, chairs and sticks flew freely, and the interior of the cafe was wrecked before military riot-squads from the various contingents finally restored order.

There were no serious casualties. The cause of the row was not determined.

Delay Note.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The American government was still undecided today whether to make common cause with other foreign powers in dealing with Nationalist China's note on the Nanking outrage, or act alone.

Secretary of State Kellogg announced that the state department is in communication with Minister MacMurray in China.

Dispatches from Peking state that the representatives of the five powers regard Eugene Chen's request for an international investigation of the Nanking affair as "unsatisfactory."

36 Gunboats At Hankow.

The imperialist powers have distributed their troops and warships with a view to open war against China. Thirty-six foreign warships have their guns trained on Hankow, the present seat of the Nationalist government. These include thirteen Japanese, eleven British, seven American, three French and two Italian ships. Other war vessels are "patrolling" the Yangtze between Shanghai and Hankow.

Approximately thirty thousand imperialist troops are now stationed in the area around Hankow.

To Attempt Trans-Atlantic Flight.

PARIS, April 18.—Another noted French aviator, with an American flier, intends attempting a trans-Atlantic flight. Lieut. G. Coste, holder of the straight line non-stop flight record, accompanied by Lieut. Clarence Glover, former member of the Lafayette Escadrille, will attempt this summer to win the new much coveted Orteig prize.

Hugo Gellert to Draw Lincoln Trial Scenes For The Daily Worker

The DAILY WORKER wishes to congratulate its readers on the pleasure in store for them by reason of the fact that Hugo Gellert has offered to donate his services in furnishing sketches of the Lincoln trial where an attempt is being made to convict Ben Gold and 11 other officers and members of the Furriers Union on framed up charges. The sketches will be of the defendants, the prosecuting and defense attorneys, the judge and typical jurors. They will be drawn in the court room.

Charge To Leave.

PEKING, April 18.—The Soviet Union Charge D'Affaires, who was recalled as a result of the recent raid upon the Soviet embassy compound, advised the Peking foreign office that he will depart for Moscow tomorrow, accompanied by a large portion of the embassy staff.

Chang Continues Raids.

Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian warlord, is continuing his persecution of Nationalist sympathizers. His officials carry on raids on students and workers' organizations, and severely restrict the activities of citizens of the Soviet Union. Chang Tso-Lin, it is reported, is preventing Russians from moving from one town to another.

British Prepare For War.

CANTON, April 18.—In spite of repeated declarations of authority, Kwantung province that all necessary measures will be taken to protect life and property of foreigners and that no trouble will be allowed foreign consuls instructed foreigners to move to Shameen (foreign quarter Canton).

There is a sharp contrast between calm reigning Chinese city and Shameen where barricades, machine guns, field artillery are protected by literally mountains of sand bags and surrounded barbed wire. Scotch artillerymen serve guns. Chinese quarters are most indignant at the closing of labor unions in Hongkong by British authorities and petty-forging in regard to passengers landing Hong Kong.

1,410 Marines Leave.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The third expeditionary force of U. S. marines is enroute to China aboard the Dollar steamship, President Grant, the navy announced today.

Sailing from San Diego yesterday, three days ahead of the tentative schedule time, the liner carried 76 officers and 1,443 enlisted men, commanded by Col. H. G. Davis.

While the destination of the marines is given as Shanghai, Rear Admiral C. S. Williams, commander of the Asiatic fleet, has authority to divert the liner to any Chinese port where the situation is threatening.

Cook Predicts Revolt If Dis-Hards War on Chinese Nationalists

LONDON, April 18.—At a mass meeting in Holborn, A. J. Cook declared: "The government knows that it cannot declare war on China. It knows that if it declares war, the miners will declare war on it."

CURRENT EVENTS

tem. Without the support of the masses he is about as useful as a deflated gas bag.

THE Chinese revolutionary movement received a severe setback in Chiang's defection. His treason at a critical moment in the campaign against the Northern warlords and their imperialist cashiers halted the victorious march of the Nationalist army, encouraged the imperialists and gave them a chance to organize their forces and develop their strategy. But the millions of Chinese workers and peasants will succeed despite the treachery of individuals. The Chinese revolution will conquer, if not just now, later on, because over four hundred millions of human beings that have once tasted the sweets of their own power cannot be held in perpetual bondage.

ANOTHER interesting item of news comes from London. It has a bearing on the Chinese question. It deals with the revolt of the Independent Labor Party against Ramsay MacDonald's leadership. While the former labor premier of the British empire was receiving the plaudits of American capitalists and homage from American socialists, the official socialist organization of Great Britain was having a little fun with his political rear. After several well-directed kicks at Mr. MacDonald were registered, the annual conference of the party of which he is a leader decided that he no longer found favor in their eyes. They refused to nominate him as treasurer of the Labor Party or appoint him as delegate to the Labor Party conference. This is certainly an emphatic rebuke to the imperialist mountebank who has been sabotaging the British working-class movement for several years.

LIKE Chiang-Kai-Shek in China, MacDonald claims to be above his own party. This opponent of the dictatorship of the workers and peasants of Russia scorns the decision of a delegate conference of the I.L.P. and declares that it means nothing. MacDonald, like the rest of the critics of the governmental form thru which the Soviet Union functions, is a believer in personal dictatorship. But he will bow meekly enough to the decisions of the British government, because like Al Smith, the catholic, Ramsay MacDonald, the fake socialist, is loyal to imperialism.

"BIG FOUR" INSURANCE OFFICIALS EJECTED BY FRAUD ON "MUTUAL" STOCKHOLDERS

Mr. Fiske further says in his little masterpiece: "Its (the Metropolitan's) assets of over $1,854,000,000 belongs to its policyholders."

This is only a half truth. Mr. Fiske knows, and every honest actuary knows that not one of the present 24 million policyholders will ever see one cent of these assets. Mr. Fiske knows perfectly well that all expenditures made by his company, whether it be in the form of death claims, matured endowments, dividends or in any form, are made from the current premium income.

Mr. Fiske further knows that the yearly premium income is more than sufficient to pay all payments to policyholders. As a policyholder leaves the company either as a death claim, or a matured endowment, he is out, and his share of the tremendous assets remains in the crooked custody of Mr. Haley, Mr. Albert Wiggin, Mr. Charles M. Schwab and the remainder of the Chase National Bank brigands.

Plenty of Gravy.
Mr. Haley Fiske, the author of this misleading and fraudulent pseudo-financial tract, knows as well as the writer does, that in the year 1925 (last available public report) the Metropolitan's income was 220 million dollars greater than all of its disbursements. This allows for every conceivable form of expenditure. And the "boys" at number One Madison avenue can conceive of more expenses than a crooked A. F. of L. labor leader can. And that's going some.

Mr. Fiske still further says: "This huge sum of money is their savings..."
This is a piece of ironical writing. Legally, morally, and ethically it belongs to the Metropolitan policyholders but these 24 million policyholders will never benefit by it in any way until an insurance investigation releases this gigantic sum of money.

In theory the "Big Four" are "mutual" companies, that is to say, its policyholders are given the right to vote for the board of directors. The nominations are all fixed and any credulous policyholder who tries to exercise his insurance franchise soon discovers that he is voting for Tweedledee and Tweedledum. The same gang of Wall Street hijackers manage to get in year after year.

In fact, the "Big Four" are not "mutual." They operate under the cloak of mutualization. The poor policyholder is given a snip of a refund which the company refers to as a dividend, but that is the extent of its "mutuality." The assets keep piling up year after year, the directorates of the "Big Four" keep becoming more powerful and more powerful.

If the weekly payment insurance companies are purely mutual, as they are supposed to be, then how does Mr. Fiske explain the presence of Charles M. Schwab and his gang of associated high financiers in the trough. Surely Schwab's interests are not identical with those of the 40 million workers who put their hard earned money into this patent swindle. Schwab, et al., are not acting as directors of any billion dollar corporations for the fun of the thing.

What's What in Washington

Coolidge Faking Farm Relief Thru Proposed Travels

(By a Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, April 18.—President Coolidge has let it be known that he is casting about for "desirable" farm relief legislation.

He wants the boys out on the profitless farms to know that he is now concerned about them. Having vetoed their equalization fee idea, the McNary Haugen bill which it took them six years to finally put through Congress, he is now agitated about their troubles and really wants to help them, provided some way can be found that does not meddle with such fundamental matters as tariff, subsidy, exchange gambling and other items.

No Promises Yet
The President has not as yet discussed the matter—even through the convenient device of his official spokesman. But on his behalf others have. The department of commerce, headed by Secretary Jardine, to date has bitterly fought every scheme put forward by the farmers for their aid, has indicated that it is engaged in gathering much data and information preparatory to undertaking the work of formulating a farm relief bill innocuous enough to be able to obtain the President's approval.

Dawes An Enemy
Of course no administration men say anything about the pressure of politics having caused the President's change of heart. The fact that ominous reports have come in from the west; that Mr. Hilloe, New York national chairman, told the President after his swing around the circuit that he had better get busy to appease western resentment; that Vice-President Dawes has related among friends his disgust and dissatisfaction with Coolidge and the suspicion among them that the irascible Vice-president may be harboring the idea of taking a public fall out of Coolidge; all these factors are most carefully avoided.

Administration quarters relate that the president out of the goodness of his great heart has decided that the farmer must have succor, so he is going to honor them with a $100,000 vacation for himself among them this summer, working all the time for a "solution" for the farmers' issue.

Wants to Run.
The fact is, of course, Coolidge is a candidate to succeed himself. Whether he runs or not may still be an undecided question, but Coolidge is leaving nothing undone, or anything in the way, for him to be able to reach for the nomination if the situation remains such as to permit him doing so. The farm issue is a possible obstacle, and so, in his secretive, under-the-table way, he is getting the cogs astir to frame a way out.

Flatter "Farm Leaders"
The plan he is said to have in mind is simple. By the time he leaves Washington for his "western" vacation, around the middle of June, he will either have a so-called farm relief bill, or some scheme for such legislation.

Located in his summer White House somewhere in the Midwest or Northwest, he will invite "farm leaders" to visit him to discuss farm relief legislation.
He will flatter them with attention, publicity, pictures and verbal goo. They will return and talk in grandiose terms about the great president. The word will go out that Mr. Coolidge is struggling with the issue, making a heroic battle, and slowly but certainly gaining ground.

Then Farmers Will Vote
Next December when congress reconvenes, there will be offered with much clanging of the drums, the administration's farm relief bill. The farmers will be told that now all will soon be well among them. They will then subside, relieve themselves of their suspicions about the president and vote the good old straight republican ticket.

No plan can possibly work out before the election is over, so that it will be impossible to determine so that it can be proven to the farmer, whether the legislation is faked or not. In the meantime Mr. Coolidge will have been re-elected and the reactionary administration will be in the saddle for another four years.

May Not Work.
That is the plan. It may not be consummated however, although so far Mr. Coolidge has always put thru successfully his neat little schemes. But in this farm controversy are several factors besides Coolidge. One is congress, the other is the farmer.

In both groups are many good republicans who hate and despise Coolidge and who are not at all concerned about seeing him embarrassed. Some of the farmers being bankrupt are downright angry. Among republicans in congress are men who are deeply fed up with Coolidge and determined to derail him if possible.

Many Will Rejoice.
It is therefore entirely possible that Mr. Coolidge's plans may go awry. The farmers may stand pat and insist on the equalization fee principle, as the only possible solution. Congress, with a senate controlled by democrats and insurgent republicans

Pennsylvania G. O. P. Machine Splits Apart

By LAURENCE TODD (Fed. Press).

WASHINGTON, April 18.—War is on once more between the rival republican machines in Pennsylvania, with Boss Vare of Philadelphia lined up for revenge against Boss Bill Mellon of Pittsburgh and Boss Grundy of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Assn. President Coolidge and his advisers were not warned of the impending break between the two forces until too late.

Mellon and Grundy struck first, when in the closing hours of the session of the legislature they defeated, in the lower house, Vare's resolution for old age pensions. Vare's sister-in-law, a state senator, sponsored this humane measure, which would change the constitution so that aged workers throughout Pennsylvania could be paid state pensions.

His Political Staff.
On this issue of old age pensions Vare had staked his political future. He knew that he would be rejected by the U. S. Senate in the coming session on the credentials he secured through the lavish use of money in the primary and election of 1926.

But he was preparing to run again and win by an actual count of real votes, by giving old age pension assurances to the millions of wage workers and their voting relatives in the Keystone commonwealth.

"Mother" Grundy Fears.
Grundy, who has dictated tariff schedules at Washington and has collected millions from manufacturers for political purposes at home, looked upon Vare's plan as nothing short of bolshevism. Old age pensions would undermine company unions, destroy the fear of the boss in mine and factory and railroad employ, and give trade unionism and political radicalism a new start.

He protested. Andrew Mellon, head of the family and head of the Coolidge cabinet, was not officially informed of the Grundy-Mellon revolt until it had begun. If he was privately consulted he gave no sign. In any event the G. O. P. in Pennsylvania is now split wide open, as in the Pepper-Vare primary battle of last spring.

Mellon Pulled in.
Backing Vare is Rep. Morin of Pittsburgh. In 1922 the U. S. Steel Corporation tried to beat him for renomination. He was with Vare in the primary fight last year. Now he wants to run against Sen. David Reed, Mellon family lawyer, who will be a candidate for renomination next spring. Morin is said to control the actual precinct organization in Allegheny County, as Vare does in Philadelphia.

Thus Mellon will have to fight for Reed and against Morin and Vare in Pittsburgh under a handicap: he must build up a separate organization with the millions of cold cash which the manufacturers will now proceed to pay into the hands of Grundy. Since old age pensions have a strong appeal to slaves of the steel companies, it may prove that Vare and Morin have discovered a way to break Mellon's political power in his own stronghold.

Andrew Mellon failed to get Coolidge to go into the Pepper primary fight last year. It is improbable, politicians say, that he will induce Coolidge to say anything for David Reed and against Morin next spring.

Literature Leads in Soviet Book Exports

MOSCOW April 18.—The export of soviet books into foreign countries started on a big scale in 1925-26, when 20,000 roubles' worth of books was exported to Germany, 13,000 roubles to France, 12,000 roubles to America, 22,000 roubles to China, 17,000 roubles to Latvia, etc. The total value of exports of books from the USSR in 1925-26 was 112,000 roubles. As for the first half of the current working year 1926-27, the total value is 70,000 roubles.

Art literature ranks first among the soviet books exported, making up 40 per cent of the total. Of the books exported to America, the art literature constitutes up to 50 per cent.

Two Alarm Fire.

Two alarms were sounded yesterday for a fire that burned through the press room of the News Stock House at 75 Broadway, Flushing, the plant of the Flushing Journal, a daily newspaper.

presided over by Vice President Dawes who is second to none in his lack of fervor about Coolidge, and a house controlled by the farm bloc, seconded by the democrats, may rewrite his sop and send him a bill that will put the issue very bitterly before him. Instead of approving a sharp measure, he may have to consider an act with teeth. It will be tough on him, but there are many good republican leaders who will rejoice mightily thereon.

OFFICE BOYS OF THE AMERICAN EMPIRE

Frazier to Expose Gunboat Diplomacy In Lecture Tour

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(F.P.)—Sen. Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota, Nonpartisan League Republican, has started on a cross-continent speaking trip devoted to exposing the imperialist policy of the Coolidge-Mellon administration and its control by Morgan & Co. He will be accompanied by Benj. C. Marsh, executive secretary of the People's Reconstruction League, and Walter Liggett, the newspaper man who first charged before the Senate committee on foreign relations, last winter, that Doheny's oil land titles in Mexico were largely fraudulent.

The schedule includes Indianapolis April 18, St. Louis April 19, Kansas City April 21, Topeka April 22, Denver April 24, Salt Lake City April 27, Cheyenne April 28, Los Angeles April 30 and San Francisco May 3.

Marsh and Liggett will meet certain other Northwestern senators at Portland, and will hold meetings there and in Seattle, Bismarck, Minneapolis, Sioux Falls, Sioux City and Milwaukee.

American relations with Mexican oil and Mexican counter-revolutionary plotters will be Senator Frazier's topic at some of these meetings. At others he will tell the story of American intervention in Nicaragua and American naval threats against the Chinese Nationalists.

WORKERS! PROTEST AGAINST DEATH OF SACCO and VANZETTI!

Our Case is Serious

Consultation with our lawyers discloses the very serious nature of the charges which are being made by reactionary societies against The DAILY WORKER. It appears that efforts will be made not only to send to jail those responsible for the editorial policy and the administration of the paper, but also to suspend its mailing privileges. This is the aim and purpose of the wealthy organizations which are pressing the case.

Comrades! The case is serious. Do not wait until too late. Do not wait until the blow falls upon your paper. We must put up a powerful defense of our paper. We must prevent the withdrawal of mailing privileges. We must fight for the right to continue our fight against the Wolls, the Sigmans, and the Greens. We must retain our paper for the fight against imperialism.

We urge all friends of The DAILY WORKER to immediately turn their efforts to the raising of the necessary funds to fight for the right to maintain our paper. Delay or lack of effort may be disastrous.

If comrades who want to see The DAILY WORKER live will get behind the defense of our paper and our staff with half the energy that our enemies are using to silence us, we will be able to win this battle and continue the fight.

Coolidge Balks at Porto Rico Relief; Backs Sugar Trust

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(FP)—President Coolidge will take no action to relieve the economic misery of the masses of the people in Porto Rico, it was indicated at the White House after Coolidge had heard the report of Secretary of War Davis, who recently visited the island. It was at a banquet by the island legislature to Davis that the terrible condition of the workers of Porto Rico was described in a speech by Sen. Iglesias, Socialist.

Coolidge has decided that Porto Ricans are "friendly toward the rest of the United States," but that there is no reason for giving them special attention now. He will soon appoint a new governor in place of Governor Townier, who is ill, but he will not name a Porto Rican for the place. He does not propose to humor their demand for the right to elect their own governor.

Townier, who was formerly chairman of the House committee on insular affairs, has been a tool of the American corporations in the island which control the sugar, coffee, tobacco and fruit industries. Standards of living among plantation workers have sunk to a level of semi-starvation, but corporate profits have been high.

Basoff on Stand to Be Cross Examined in Mineola Trial

The stool pigeon Earnest Basoff went back on the witness stand for further cross-examination yesterday when the trial of Ben Gold, I. Shapiro, S. Hencher and 8 other members of the New York Furriers' Joint Board, charged with responsibility for an assault said to have occurred in a seab shop during the strike, is resumed before Judge Lewis J. Smith at the Nassau county court house, Mineola, Contradicted Himself.

Basoff was on the stand for four hours last Friday and contradicted himself so continuously that his testimony served as clear evidence of the fact that these fur workers are in a courtroom, and facing a possible jail sentence, as a result of a frame-up.

Members of the union are in no doubt as to who has brot about this frame-up. They are seeing the day by day attempts of Matthew Woll, Edward F. McGrady and Hugh Frayne to smash the furriers' union, to force registration with the scab International by methods of terrorization, and by having workers discharged from their jobs. They remember McGrady's boast that Gold and the other leaders would be put in jail—and that would end the struggle in the union.

To Continue Union Work.
But the response of the fur workers to these tactics is expressed in a leaflet issued by the Furriers' Shop Chairmen Council, of which Simon Biro is chairman and Hayim Bassen is secretary. It urges the workers to push forward the organization of buildings, and to give to the provocateurs and traitors "the reply that you gave them in Carnegie Hall."

Consolidation Wiping Out Retailers of Minn.

ST. PAUL, (FP).—"Nearly all the basic industries are monopolized and the remorseless process of consolidation has entered the retail field in a number of forms and is beginning to wipe out the little merchant," declares the Minnesota Union Advocate, official organ of the St. Paul and Minnesota labor movement.
"The chain stores have entered the country towns; they are not customers of the regular jobbing and wholesale houses, as the chain stores buy their supplies through eastern agencies at rock bottom prices. The result is that traveling salesmen are taken off the road, and jobbing houses have to consolidate to save themselves."
"Monopoly of the means and opportunities of wealth production gives to an ever diminishing few the power to dictate the life of the masses. The only protection against this impending slavery is to make monopoly of industry a public matter and employ it for the common good.

Party Political Campaign.
LOS ANGELES—A well-attended general membership meeting of the Workers Party of Los Angeles and the Young Workers League officially opened the membership drive in this city, and the political campaign for the municipal elections May 3rd and June 6th. Malcolm Bruce, Sub-District Organizer, presided.

The Workers' Party is issuing a leaflet for the election campaign containing its program of immediate demands, under the slogans, "Boycott the Bosses Candidates," "Support Labor Candidates," and "Build A Labor Party."

It is expected that the Party will shortly issue a leaflet endorsing the platform of Sam Gliberman, independent labor candidate for the Board of Education.

COTTON INDUSTRY, ONE TIME LEADER, IN ENGLAND, ENTERING INTO DECLINE

By LELAND OLDS (Federated Press)

That the British economic empire is fighting with its back to the wall is revealed in cold statistics of the British cotton spinning and weaving industry from the British census of production in 1924. The figures reflect a big drop in the foreign demand for English cotton goods compared with the two previous census years 1912 and 1907.

The cotton industry made the first rapid strides in the industrial revolution which gave England the lead in the capitalist struggle for world dominion. The British commercial and investment empire of the 19th century virtually rested upon the world market for the cheap cotton goods produced in England.

Criminal Offense.
So important did England consider this market in the early days that it made the export of textile machinery

British Cotton Industry

Year	Cotton yarn (thousands of pounds)	Production	Exports
1907	1,800,000	1,800,000	241,000
1912	1,976,000	1,976,000	244,000
1924	1,279,000	1,279,000	162,000

or of designs for textile machinery a criminal offense. The first textile machinery brought to America from England was smuggled out part by part and assembled by emigrant mechanics who carried away the designs in their heads.

India and China afforded the great market for British cottons. In these distant economic provinces the oppressive arm of British imperialism has functioned to a considerable extent in the interest of Manchester cotton manufacturers.

Seriously Hit.
Now the census shows this vital market seriously hit. With curtailment of the overseas market has come curtailment in production, reduction in the number of workers in the cotton mills and spread of chronic part-time.

The production and export of British cotton yarn and cotton piece goods in 1907, 1912 and 1924 were:

Production and Exports

Year	Production	Exports
1907	7,088,000	6,298,000
1912	8,044,000	6,918,000
1924	5,426,000	4,627,000

Compared with 1912, exports of cotton yarn have fallen 33.6 per cent and exports of cotton piece goods 33.1 per cent. Compared with 1907 the reductions are 32.7 per cent and 26.6 per cent. Production of cotton yarn is 30.2 per cent under 1912 and 23.4 per cent under 1907 while production of piece goods has fallen 32.5 per cent from 1912 and 23.3 per cent from 1907. Reductions in the production of piece goods have paralleled reductions in exports.

The census report shows 517,232 workers employed in the British cotton industry in 1924 compared with 621,516 in 1912 and 572,062 in 1907. It also refers to the part-time prevalent in 1924.

Important factors in the world situation which these figures reflect are the spread of the industrial revolution to British economic colonies and the development of a widespread boycott of British goods by colonial peoples slowly rising to shake off the imperial yoke.

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR REVEALS 41 CENTS AN HOUR WAGE FOR UNSKILLED FACTORY WORKERS

The average hiring rate for unskilled labor in American factories Jan. 1, 1927 was 41c an hour, according to the U. S. Department of Labor. This is a slight improvement over January, 1926, when the average rate was 40.2c. Throughout the year the average has been creeping up.

Some Work for 12 cents an Hour.
If general contracting is included with manufacturing, the average hiring rate for common labor Jan. 1 was 43.2c. But the average gives no indication of the extraordinary range at which employers hire adult male common labor. It covers the colored or Mexican worker hired for 15c an hour by the brickyards of the southern Mississippi valley or by sawmills in the south Atlantic region. At the other extreme it covers the unionized common building labor of the middle Atlantic region hired at 12 1/2 cents an hour.

Highest Rate 49 cents.
The highest average rate is 49.8c in general contracting. In this industry unionization has made considerable progress. The lowest average rate is 33.4c in sawmills.

The low, high and average hourly rates by industries are:

Common Labor January, 1927

Industry	Low	High	Average
Automobile	33.2c	62.5c	45.6c
Brick, tile	15.0	55.6	40.2
Cement	25.0	60.0	39.6
Electric equipment	31.0	52.0	43.0
Foundries, machine shops	17.5	56.0	38.7
Iron, steel	20.0	50.0	42.7
Leather	22.5	54.2	43.1
Lumber (sawmills)	15.0	62.5	33.4
Paper, pulp	22.5	56.3	43.8
Petroleum refining	30.0	62.0	46.1
Meat packing	37.5	50.0	41.0
Utilities	20.0	56.3	39.4
General contracting	20.0	112.5	49.8
All industries	15.0	112.5	43.2

Little Change From 1926.

The average rate for common labor in the lumber industry is 2.8c an hour above last year. Other gains are paper and pulp 2.3c, foundries and machine shops 2c, leather 1.6c and electrical equipment 1.5c. The average has fallen 2.6c in the petroleum industry, 1.5c in brick and tile, 1.2c in public utilities and 1c an hour in the automobile industry.

The hiring rate for unskilled labor has always been important to labor. It is the basis on which the entire wage system rests. With the progress of automatic machinery, making it possible for employers to hire an increasing proportion of factory labor as unskilled, the common labor rate becomes vital. As long as there is a great body of unskilled labor available at an average wage amounting to less than $1,200 a year on a 9-hour day basis, union wages will be inadequate and insecure. The great problem of organized labor is to raise the standard of these unskilled workers.

"Forward" on Trial as Betrayer of Workers

The Jewish Daily Forward will celebrate its 30th anniversary next Sunday with J. Ramsay McDonald as its guest of honor. It proudly announces that it has always stood for the workers' interests but those who have participated in the labor struggle in this city are of a different opinion.

To settle this question the Forward will be given a public trial next Sunday, April 24, 10:30 a. m., at Central Opera House, New Star Casino and Manhattan Lyceum.

DISCUSS PROSPECTS FOR STRIKE BY RUBBER WORKERS OF AKRON, OHIO

AKRON, Ohio, April 18.—A discussion is going on nationally about where the next big wage movement will occur in a basic industry. It is shown that Passaic has opened the way for further victories of the exploited workers in the basic industries, and that it is merely a question of time before more demonstrations of solidarity will take place at other points, namely, Lawrence, Bayonne, Gary, Detroit and Akron, particularly Akron, since here the wage cuts and the speed-up have been geared up to an acute extent, and a union has already sprung into existence.

For Still Dryer Alaska.
WASHINGTON, April 18.—The supreme court today granted the government's petition for a review of lower courts decision holding that the Alaska bone dry law was superseded by the less drastic Volstead Act.

Chinese Speaker At Chicago May Day Celebration

CHICAGO, Ill., April 18.—May First means a lot to the workers of Chicago. Historically, it is to the fathers of Chicago's present generation of wage slaves that world labor owes its annual international holiday. During the great working class struggles of the eighties in this country, Chicago was the center of the fight for the eight hour day that culminated in the murder of the Haymarket victims.

The eight-hour strikes during that fiery decade were called each year on May First. The biggest of these efforts was that of 1886. The workers of Chicago were the standard bearers. A huge strike at the McCormick Harvester works called prior to May First was fused with the general eight-hour movement. On the second of May a great demonstration was held at the McCormick plant. Company gunmen and police opened fire on the crowd and several were killed.

Haymarket Frameup
The following day a meeting was called in the Haymarket as a protest. It was at this demonstration that the dastardly frame-up was perpetrated that ended in the hanging of the Haymarket martyrs and a reign of terror that crushed the eight-hour movement.

For the workers of Chicago the observance of the international holiday to be held at the Ashland Auditorium on Sunday, May First in the evening, is of special moment.
But aside from its historical significance, May First this year comes at a time when the revolutionary movement is looking up again. Next to the Russian Revolution, the Chinese nationalist liberation movement is the greatest working class achievement of recent years.

Chinese Speaker
The meeting being held on May First this year thruout the country under the auspices of the Workers' Communist Party will put special emphasis on the Chinese revolution and voice the demand that American and all other imperialist powers keep "Hands off China." C. T. Chi, who has just returned from the world congress against imperialism recently concluded in Brussels, Belgium, will be a speaker at the Chicago meeting.

Wm. Z. Foster, nationally known trade union leader, will head the speaker's list.

Socialists Refuse to Aid Milwaukee Hands Off China Campaign

MILWAUKEE, April 18.—Efforts to secure the co-operation of the local Socialist Party in a "Hands Off China" protest demonstration sponsored by the local branch of the Anti-Imperialist League for April 17 proved unavailing. The main excuse given was that "our Speakers are too busy."

The local capitalistic paper The Journal has given free space in its columns to announce the meeting, but Mr. Berger's Socialist Organ "The Leader" although it writes editorials in opposition to the Wall Street policies of the State Department in China, evidently considers its space far too precious to waste on practical steps in the interest of colonial slaves.

Textile Magnates Attack Open Shop; Defend Low Wages

The protest of forty-one Southern bishops and ministers against the inhuman conditions in southern textile mills was answered by the National Association of Manufacturers yesterday.

Attacking the closed shop, the industrial barons said that "wages can neither be based on the principle of the needs of men or moral requirements."
"The closed union shop," the Association said, "is a monstrosity which will never be tolerated in America. The appeal of the clergymen, though couched in servile terms, called attention to the long hours, and the meager wages in southern textile mills."

MEXICATECHISM

By V. K.

Q. What is the purpose of the existence of Mexico and its inhabitants?

A. In his infinite wisdom and foresight, the Creator planned Mexico for three supreme purposes: (1) That we, Americans, might readily see our superiority and be justly proud of it. (2) That rich, legitimate outlet be available for our excess capital, under the protecting shadow of the Golden Eagle. (3) That our great statesmen, at times of internal difficulties and strife, might unite all brave and patriotic Americans, rich and poor alike, in insisting upon our legitimate rights and honor in Mexico, and thus make them forget their petty internal squabbles.

Q. How should a red-blooded one-hundred-per cent American learn the truth about Mexico?

A. Since it is impossible for an average person to learn the truth by an individual investigation, and since the resourceful American corporations which have invested in Mexico have the permanent welfare of that country nearest their hearts the facts should be taken from newspapers and magazines subsidized by such corporations.

Q. Would you advocate similar unconditional support of the administration of all local affairs concerning your community?

A. In local politics, one's business interests, friendships, church affiliations, advantages offered by this or that party, and family traditions, definitely determine one's opinion, so that a wise man may always act to his own best advantage, and at the same time not incur the displeasure of the party in power.

Q. Who spreads misinformation about Mexico?

A. Persons and organizations commonly known as "red."

Q. Against what kinds of misinformation about Mexico should one be on one's guard?

A. The Reds pretend to love the common people of Mexico, and show that American corporations are enslaving Mexico by virtually controlling its natural resources. The Reds would make unimaginative persons believe that illiterate and degenerate half-breeds and their brigand chiefs could have a bright future like ourselves and could advance both materially and spiritually if left alone.

Q. What is the real purpose of this pernicious propaganda?

A. The radicals are using Mexico as a tool in spreading discontent against our wonderful present-day economic system. By discrediting our beloved leaders of industry and finance, who have reached their present positions by their christian virtues, the agitators hope to become more influential with their blind followers, and to earn thus, an easy living without working.

Q. How should the Red propaganda about Mexico be combatted?

A. When a disloyal organization willfully obstructs a profitable and successful war for national honor, and mannaes to deprive hundreds of thousands of honest workers of their rightful wages in the manufacture of munitions of war, all means of suppression and violence are not only permissible, but sanctioned by the spirit of our highest laws, both human and divine.

Q. Do you, as an individual, pledge your unconditional support to our impending war against Mexico, and to the suppression of opposition within our own land?

A. Inspired by the wonderful success of the Great European War, which has brought peace, plenty, and brotherly love to the world; obeying the sacred impulse to surrender my reason when even the richest men of the country clamor for war and are ready for supreme sacrifice; bowing my head humbly before the wisdom of our intrepid and cool-headed statesmen and army chiefs; hoping that this war will arouse the whole of Latin-America against us, and thus ultimately give us wealth-bringing control over their great natural resources; inspired by the lofty thought that during the war thousands of brilliant business men will become multi-millionaires; deeply satisfied with the forthcoming curbing of loose talk of irresponsible scatterbrains and their just severe discipline in military prisons; rejoicing at the wonderful many experiences of our young soldiers in camps and in trenches, and at the unfolding of their full manhood through wounds and disease—as a christian and an American, I pledge my unconditional support.

So help me Coolidge and Kellogg, and a gambler's chance.

The Story of a Retired Clothing Merchant Who Became Patriotic

MR. JACOB CASH, a retired clothing dealer and for 12 years a city marshal, organized himself as the United States Patriotic Society in 1925. On the walls of the banquet room at the Hotel Commodore where the organization was brought into being were charts purporting to show the growth of radicalism in the United States. Mr. Cash dedicated his "society" chiefly to the business of fighting this radicalism by means of "educating workers" in the United States constitution. A number of prominent democratic politicians and a well-known Jewish rabbi (Silverman), spoke at the initial meeting. "Founder Cash," as he was referred to, beamed upon the lawyers and business men present and assured them that he would fight radicalism in all its forms. But most of them refrained from joining his society.

At the same time Mr. Cash distributed copies of his monthly paper, "The Patriot" (all back copies of which may be obtained from his office at 299 Broadway). MR. CASH is keen for keeping all foreign radicals out of this country and has advocated "constitution intelligence tests" to be given all immigrants before they take ship for America. In case they get in without trouble Mr. Cash would make sure they were kosher by giving them further doses of the constitution in their own language. He considers the constitution a solution for all our industrial ills. When the Passaic strike broke out Cash rushed copies of the constitution and his own life story—"What America Means To Me"—to the picket lines in the hope that the workers, on reading of Cash's success in America, would hurry back to work. The attempt to propagandize the workers with the constitution apparently was of no avail, especially as they saw the Bill of Rights—the first ten amendments to the constitution—violated every day by the local police. Later Mr. Cash offered Jack Bryan, a spy for the Botany Mills, a regular job traveling about the country distributing copies of his book among the workers. Bryan refused, even though Cash promised to make him a city marshal if he would work for him.

Mr. Cash declares that his present activities for "Americanism" cost him $25,000 a year. The organization is, of course, a one man affair and simply Jacob's hobby. In 1926 it reported 58 contributors, paying dues of from $2.00 up. Mr. Cash covers all necessary expenses, as the income from contributors is apparently negligible.

Said Mr. Cash in December, 1926, when he was offering free speakers on Americanization to address clubs, conventions and private gatherings: "Patriotism is needed as much in times of peace as of war. Our country is facing a crisis, gradually coming to a head. She needs her children to help. We must form a bulwark not only to withstand the combined onslaught of hatred, jealousy and greed but to promulgate the doctrine of good citizenship, honesty and harmony within our borders."

Mr. Cash is a Spanish War veteran and says he was a close friend of the late T. R. whose influence on Mayor Mitchell made Cash a city marshal.

Cash was very fond of meeting big political figures. He once went to the White House to call on President McKinley and requested an autograph of the president, which was given him. Later he called on General Fitzhugh Lee, governor of Cuba. The latter gave him a note which informed the world as follows: "I hereby certify that Mr. Jacob Cash called at my headquarters today." That was January 21, 1899. Cash has been ever since trying to hobnob with the "great." At the outbreak of the world war he was organizing the National Business Men's League, composed chiefly of petty dry goods merchants and dealers with whom he was associated in a business way.

It may be noted that Mr. Cash, although he served in the Spanish-American War says, "We were under full pack three times ready to go but we never got to the front." (See picture of Jacob himself in military regalia on page 41 of his illustrated "What America Means To Me.") Also his picture handing Roosevelt a glass of water on page 61 of the same book.) His comical flunkeyism is his outstanding characteristic.

One of Mr. Cash's most telling pamphlets was entitled "Whither America," in which he reprinted (without credit to The DAILY WORKER or the International Publishers) part of Trotsky's "Whither England" in parallel columns with Cash's crude conception of Whither America. He had swallowed most of the fairy tales of the Lusk Report on "Subversive Movements" and retails it in this pamphlet with all its mistakes.

Held for Crime

Earl Jackson, 15, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., killed his step-mother, Mrs. Mary Jackson, 21, with an axe "because she begged me to do it," according to a confession given out by the Prosecuting Attorney Byron Kearbey. The prosecutor says Earl declared the step-mother said she was "tired of living with his father." The murder was committed last October. The body has just been found. The boys had said his step-mother was in Arkansas on a cotton-picking job.

RED MARCH

Stand up our uncouth wounds, O granite earth! With banners marching we are buffeted Between contemptuous winds, And catapausting minds Breaking upon us with shoddy of the dead, Shrilling against us for our uncommon birth. O sounding earth, be resonant for us! Their cormorant clamor and witches' brew in vain Are flung upon us here, Our ranks are without fear, Our banners catch the red of dawn again, Our shouts devour them, our march is ominous! Bind up our wounds, but never be at ease Within quiescent tents and panoplies, But climb up to the portals of the wise, But clamber to the outposts of the skies!

—MARTIN FEINSTEIN.

REBELLION

All day I walk the velvet lawns And fling my papers on their stairs, And see the bored and lazy yawns, And realize what's mine—and theirs.

The hate the worker feels when caged By bars to one unsightly place Runs thru my veins; I am enraged With all my impotent disgrace.

What vistas of a magic land I glimpse thru massive, swinging doors That never will yield to my hand As long as this that is, endures.

What rose and amber blend to hold An artists' dream of summer dawn, What pearl and sapphire unfold As aching feet plod on and on.

Smile, masters, in your gilded bowers Shut from the hungry mass away, Steel claws are flexing in this hour Ready to rend the bars, and slay!

—HENRY GEORGE WEISS.

DEFRAUDED

I saw him, thin and pasty white,— Thirteen or fourteen years maybe,— One morning when it scarce was light Boarding an early car with me;

A knapsack on his back there was; "Out hiking, kid?" I asked him; he Replied, "No, sir, I'm bound for work Down at the cotton factory."

He coughed; the lint of cotton clung Upon his coat; I looked away. I could not bear to see his face. "What money do you get a day?"

"Two-forty, sir,—thirteen a week. The dust? it makes a feller cough. We don't work all day Saturdays; Come twelve o'clock at noon we're off."

He said good-bye and went his way, Poor hapless lad, so gallantly, To toil the sunlit hours away Down at the cotton factory.

—HENRY GEORGE WEISS.

THERE IS NO PEACE

There is no peace; who talks of peace In this mad hour is fool or knave. Give over; let the babbling cease! King Gold is tottering to his grave.

Now is no time for sophistries; Choose whom you fight for in the fray It is not peacefully he dies; It is not peacefully we slay.

—HENRY GEORGE WEISS.

BOOKS

AMERICAN HUMOR: MODEL 1927, G. O. P.

Foundations of the Republic: Speeches and Addresses, by Calvin Coolidge. Charles Scribner's Sons. $2.50.

"To my mind America has but one main problem, the character of the men and women it shall produce" (p. 75). "America recognizes no aristocracy save those who work. The badge of service is the sole requirement for admission to the ranks of our nobility" (76). "We have had our revolution and our reforms. I do not favor a corporation government, a bank government, a farm government or a labor government. I am for a common-sense government by all the people according to the American policy and under the American constitution" (76). "I am, thrilled at the thought of my audience tonight, for I never address boys without thinking, among them may be a boy who will sit in this White House" (67). "It is hard to see how a great man can be an atheist" (68).

"These are not only some of the fundamentals of the teachings of the Boy Scouts, they are the fundamentals of our American institutions" (68). "Another activity which is being encouraged is that of gardening. It is extremely practical on the one hand, and lends itself to the artistic on the other" (8). "It is only by surrendering a certain amount of our liberty, only by taking on new duties and assuming new obligations that we make that progress which we characterize as civilization. That is the answer to every herald of discontent and to every preacher of destruction" (23). "I will now turn this meeting over to General Lord, the director of the bureau of the budget. He is human . . . He will tell you more in detail of the things which have been accomplished and of the work which lies before you under the financial program" (47).

"As already indicated, America is turning from the mere thought of the cultural advantage to a greater appreciation of the cultural advantage of learning" (57). "This occasion is dedicated to freedom. The people of Baltimore and of Maryland are gathered here in that spirit" (89). "The time for Americans to range themselves firmly, squarely and uncompromisingly behind American ideals is now" (96). "We have contributed hundreds of millions of dollars to foreign countries. We have given freely of our counsel to the settlement of difficulties in Latin-America and the adjustment of war problems in Europe" (98). "Laws and treaties may help, but peace and war are attitudes of mind" (99). "Something in all human beings makes them want to do the right thing" (103).

"The government of the U. S. is a device for maintaining in perpetuity the rights of the people, with the ultimate extinction of all privileged classes" (114). "No American coming to Philadelphia on this anniversary could escape being thrilled" (115). "I have a double satisfaction in welcoming home the victorious Washington baseball team" (129). "Manager Harris, I am directed by a group of your Washington fellow citizens to present to you this loving cup" (131). "The great truth cannot be too often repeated that this nation is exactly what the people make it. Our government rests upon religion" (148). "The Young Men's Hebrew Association and the Young Women's Hebrew Association do social and educational work of the greatest value" (170).

—SENDER GARLIN.

"The Communist."

The second issue of "The Communist" is in itself the justification for the transformation in character and form involved in the change from the "Workers' Monthly."

In content this issue is certainly noteworthy. Of course the leading article is devoted to a discussion of the historical role of C. E. Ruthenberg in the American revolutionary movement, by Max Bedacht, the editor and for many years his close co-worker. The recent International conferences are covered in two articles, one by Jay Lovestone on the VII Plenum of the Executive of the Communist International ("Towards Another Wave of Revolutionary Struggles") and another by Herbert Zam on the VI Plenum of the Communist International of Youth ("Winning the Youth").

A short examination of the relations of the U. S. and Tacna Arica ("The United States and Tacna Arica," by Ella G. Wolfe); another on the historical background of the present Nicaraguan situation ("Historical Background of the Nicaraguan Situation," by A. G. Bosse), and a discussion of the question of rubber ("The World Struggle For Rubber," by Leon Platt) are the contributions to the study of the problems of American imperialism in this issue.

Unquestionably, however, the center of the April issue of "The Communist" is the "With Marx and Engels Section," this time devoted to the first of a series of letters by Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels on the civil war in America. These documents are prefaced by a general introduction by Max Bedacht ("Applied Historic Materialism") and special introductory remarks by A. Landy. The documents along with the introductions are certain to prove of great value to the student of historic materialism and of American history.

The review of the events of the month ("Thru the Month") concludes this issue of "The Communist." Apparently unavoidable circumstances demanded the omission of the editorials and of the reviews but we hope that this will not re-occur in the future as these two features are of considerable interest and importance.

In make-up and in typography this second issue is also a great improvement upon the first, showing a certain habituation to the new form of the journal.

It is becoming more and more evident that "The Communist," the successor to the "Workers' Monthly," is really indispensable to the Communist and to the advanced worker who wants really to understand the theoretical and practical problems facing the American revolutionary movement at this time.

The Biography Of An Epoch.

"Michael Collins and The Making Of Ireland," by Piaras Beaslai. Harper & Brothers. $10. 2 Vol.

This book is partly a history of the struggle between the Irish nationalists and the British government from 1916 until the death of Michael Collins—a strong man of the Free State government and one of the signatories to the treaty that created the Free State—and partly a polemic against Eamon De Valera.

The author gives scant attention to the contribution made by the Irish labor movement during that struggle. General strikes and refusals to transport soldiers and munitions of war for use against the Irish people are lightly dismissed. Mr. Beaslai is a pure and simple nationalist and wastes no time on the working class. Theirs is but to toil and ask no questions. The author does not express hostility to the labor movement. He simply ignores it, the James Connolly, commander of the Dublin revolutionary army, was in fact the chief strategist of the revolt and the man who was principally responsible for the decision to fight at that time.

Nevertheless Beaslai has turned out the most informative work of this troubled period that has yet seen the light of day. The Irish rebels were confronted with the task of meeting the mighty power of the British empire with a handful of men. Yet they baffled this murderous machine for six years and forced the proud rulers of Britain to compromise.

The hero of the story, Michael Collins, was an amazingly ingenious and courageous leader of a guerrilla army. Even making allowances for exaggeration due to hero-worship on the part of his biographer there is no doubt but Collins was a born leader of men and a straightforward person, who was convinced that a compromise with Britain was the only course left to the rebels when he signed his name to the treaty under threat of a renewal of the murderous orgy of destruction conducted by the Black and Tans under the direction of Lloyd George.

Eamon de Valera, who is now among us, is revealed as a quibble and reactionary who refused to join the Irish Republican Brotherhood, a secret organization, after the Easter week rising, because the catholic church condemned secret organizations.

If you can afford ten berries and wish to know something of the struggle waged by a small devoted band of workers and peasants against a trained army of 60,000 mercenaries you could put your money to worse use than by purchasing those two volumes, always keeping a salt shaker handy when Mr. Beaslai devotes himself to the pleasant task of doing justice to his political opponents.

Literary Criticism by the Masses

By Alexander Serafimovitch

FORMERLY this place used to be a stable for the horses of the grand dukes, who used to stage drinking bouts and orgies in a swell restaurant nearby.

Now the walls have been painted white; white pillars support the ceiling; this is now one of the may clubs of the Leningrad metal workers.

I sit at the red table and look into the faces of the proletarian readers who fill the entire hall.

I am not here to read from my works, make a bow, and go off.

Party functionaries, Soviet employees, trade unions officials, our economists all give an account of their activities to the masses of workers. Must not the artist, also, give an account to his proletarian readers?

Why has no one mentioned it before? First, because at the beginning of the revolution there was no time for it; struggle, hunger, disorder absorbed all our energies. Second, it was necessary that not only isolated individuals, not only small sections of readers, but that broad masses of workers should enter into relations with literature, that the mass reader should arise.

This reader now exists. There are tens of thousands of him. He now exercises his right, the right to demand an account from his functionary in the field of art.

I STAND at the red table. Hundreds of eyes are directed toward me. I do not have to give an exposition of the contents of my works. The comrades of the library of the metal workers' trade union have carried out, adroitly and successfully, a well organized campaign of preparation. Whenever the workers came to the libraries of the trade union—there are thirty such libraries—to take out books, they were urged to read and think over the words of the writer who was going to address them. Leaflets were circulated with the photograph of the writer, a brief biographical sketch, and a short estimate of his work. The workers were asked to write their opinions of the artist in question. They also jotted down the name of their factory, their age and sex. The official organ of the trade union, "The Metal Worker" published articles on the writer and on the forthcoming literary evening. And now these hundreds of eyes were watching me calmly and with assurance. They know who I am, what I have done, and what can be demanded of me. A worker from the Baltic Works speaks briefly on the significance of the workers' critical evenings. A specialist on literary history, brought in for the evening, gives, for the benefit of those who had not been reached by the preparatory campaign, a short sketch of my development and a characterization of my work.

I THEN relate how I wrote The Iron Torrent. Everything interested them. What tasks I set myself (in the form of an episode showing the relations of the peasantry to the revolutionary struggle—a mass which in the beginning is anarchic, disorderly, and which, through unbearable suffering, blood, tears, and despair, achieves organization, which is filled with devotion to the Soviet power). They wanted to know how far my story tallies with real facts, how I gathered the material for it (by cross-examining the participants) whether I was personally in the region described, whether I know the population, its mode of life, the surrounding country; whether I have correctly described the landscape.

They pointed out inaccuracies and contradictions: the sailors were the revolutionary part of the old troops, they were the most determined fighters for the revolution. But I describe them as bandits. Koshuk wants to punish the soldiers because they have plundered, but his own staff, which wears brand new clothes, probably taken from the Georgians, he leaves untouched.

THERE is a deluge of questions; notes are sent up to the platform. The verbal questions are written down by the comrades in charge of the evening, and systematized. The notes are numbered and put in order so that no questions are repeated.

A metal worker speaks with a deep, ringing voice that fills the room; he speaks calmly and with assurance. "Comrades, I am the representative of a literary circle—"

"What factory?" ask the comrades who organize the evening. Here, too, a note is made of all information.

"Electro-power," voices from the benches shout.

"Our literary circle has appointed me to make a report on the work of the writer Serafimovitch."

"Well, we read and discussed his Iron Torrent, and found that it was well written, and that the scenes are as vivid as if he had been there himself and had gone through the story in person. There is only one fault, and we have discussed it: on every page there is the most awful swearing. We already have too much of that kind of thing. Everywhere there is swearing—in the street, in the factory, at home, and now in this book too. We have enough of it; we want that this kind of thing should not happen in the book."

THE speaker stopped. In the former stable with the white pillars there was a dead silence. Suddenly in the first row a worker leaped up. He wore a torn summer overcoat, though it was bitter cold outside. His hands were dirty; apparently he had just come in from his bench in the factory.

"Now, comrades, that is not correct." He poured out his words with great speed. "It's not at all correct.

I was myself at the front. The enemy is coming straight at us. . . . Just as you've got your machine gun set, hell! the ammunition-belt gets stuck. He knelt down as if he were about to shoot, struggled over the floor as if he were trying to pull out the ammunition belt. "Hell! its coming and it isn't coming. The Whites are right under your nose. Then you let out a mighty oath and just as you let it out, the ammunition belt gets straight again."

He bent low, turned his head rapidly from side to side as if he were watching out for the enemy, closed his left eye, and "sweet" his machine gun right and left.

"Ta-ta-ta. . . there they go flying!" he said gleefully and stood upright.

THE hall held its breath, began moving a little, and burst into applause. A young boy stood up.

"Comrades, what the comrade from the Electro-power factory said is not true. If the author had written swear words just so, for the mere sake of swearing, out of bravado, it would be a different matter. There are writers whose every third word is a swear-word, without any necessity, so that it's disgusting to read their stuff. But in this book it is the pure truth. Take these peasants who retreat along the sea; they swear all over the place without thinking about it; that's their habit. The peasant must be described as he is."

"Hear! Hear!" "That's how it is!"

A piece of paper is sent up: "If these peasants who suffered so much during the retreat and through blood and pain learned to organize themselves, once more should stick to their piece of land, would they remain as well organized, or would they once more hang around the samovar."

YES, the workers seek in art not only entertainment, but also instruction, the solution of social, economic and other questions.

At the end of the evening the workers gave their judgment:

"The writers should give us a picture of how we live, work, act toward our wives and children, how we drink, what we have achieved—as 'de a picture as they give of the peasantry.'"

IN Leningrad the critical evenings are best organized, but also in Moscow, Charkov, etc. the workers put forward their demands as readers:

"Write intelligibly; you are not writing Russian but some kind of jargon."

"Write about workers and not always about peasants."

"Your sentences are too short. One has hardly begun to get the drift of the sentence when it is over and one hasn't quite grasped it."

"We need thick books. If you describe a man, describe him from start to finish. We can't get along with these thin little volumes. You have hardly started the book, and it's already done. We prefer to read the old books."

At last there exists for the writer a wide reading public, a public of his own class, a public without which healthy creation and life is impossible.

Alexander Serafimovitch, the author of this article, is considered one of the most brilliant of the proletarian writers in Russia. He is the author of a novel called The Iron Torrent.
