Congress of USSR Communist Party Closes With Huge Demonstration in Red Square

"Red Army in Solidarity With World Toilers"-Voroshilov in Capitol

of Class War," Red Commander Cries

FIRM FOR PEACE But Will Defend USSR Against All Attack

(Special to the Daily Worker) MOSCOW, Feb. 11 (By Radio)-With his voice roaring through the microphone over the immense historic Red Square, which was packed with a tremendous throng of workers and soldiers, Voroshilov, Commander of the Red Army, declared today:

"The Red Army is the only army in the world which is not intended for annexation, for the conquering of other lands. Together with the entire country, together with the entire Party, the Red Army strives

"But our sword is sharp, and is ready to defend and defeat all who seek to violate the peaceful Socialist labor of our country. Anyone who dares to pass over our borders, will be utterly destroyed!

"We shall fulfill this task under fighting Bolshevik banner, under the banner of class war and brotherhood with all toilers of the

Pledge of Red Army

For an hour and a half the troops of the Moscow garrison today marched through the historic Red Square, while on the ramparts around the tomb of Lenin stood Stalin, al' the leaders of the Political Buro of the Commun'st Party of the Soviet Union, the Presidium of the 17th Party Congress, and all the 1.450 delegates of the historic Party Con-

The demonstration was a pledge not only of the peace policy of the Soviet Union, but an affirmation of the determination of the toiling masses of the Soviet Union to detheir Socialist from imperialist attack.

This was remarkably symbolized by the fact that the great majority of the marchers were not regular soldiers, but armed factory workers, not uniform, as well as by the fact that the Red Army is itse'f workers' and farmers' army, with all its commanders coming from the coiling population, even to the highest commander. Voroshilov himself. Promotiv at noon, Voroshilov rode into the Red Square from the Strassky gate of the Kremlin, and he was met midpoint by the commander of the Moscow Garrison, who so him with drawn sword, and declared: "We of the Moscow Garrison are ready to parade in honor of the 17th

MOSCOW (By Radio).—The 17th Party Congress today, after sixteen days, finished its session, having accomplished monumental tasks for the planning of the future of the largest country in the world. The decisions of the ruling Communist Party, the vanguard of all the toilers of the country are now deliberately directed towards the building of a Communist society and are of overwhelming importance to the toiling masses of the entire world.

The accomplishments of the Congress are along the following main lines:

The complete unity of the Party was demonstrated, with the leaders of all the former oppositions pledging to their Congress their present accord with the Party

The successes of the first Five Year Plan were criticized and analyzed, and the program of the Second Five Year Plan, with its goal two and a half times greater than the first, providing for the complete technical reorganization of both industry and agriculture, and for the doubling or tripling of the living standard of all toilers was adopted. This provides for the abolition of the last vestiges of capitalist forms of production, which were permanently defeated in the first plan, and the abolition, likewise, of all remnants of capitalist ideology

JOSEPH STALIN

It adopted organizational measures suitable to carry out the great tasks of the Second Plan, measures affecting the Party and government appaietus, all directed towards a better control of the fulfillment of decisions and for a better disposal of forces, and stimulation of initiative, It demonstrated in the midst of a hostile capitalist world and the constant presence of the danger of war that the Soviet Union can and will defend the victories of its toilers. It gave a practical example to the toilers of the whole world what the working class can do when it takes power, and when it is led by the correct program of the Communist Party. The Congress recognizes that the carrying out of the first Five Year

Plan establishes a technical base for making the Soviet Union one of the leading industrial countries of the world, and the only country in the world with a large scale collectivized, mechanized agriculture. The Congress proceeds on this basis to complete during the next four years of the second plan the complete collectivization of agriculture. Another essential feature of the plan now adopted is a relatively greater emphasis on articles of general consumption, which means, in contradiction to the theories of the bourgeois economists abroad, that the workers of the Soviet Union are not building "Egyptian pyramids." but are building for their own use and are reaping the fruits of their toil, because they have abolished the capitalist-landlord classes who in capitalist countries take for themselves the bulk of all the advantages of progress and construction.

It should be understood that when it is stated that the second Plan provides for standards of living two to three times higher than up to now, this refers primarily to a greater variety of foods and clothing, widespread higher education, more art and culture, more of every useful pleasurable, intellectual and physical activity, such as science and sports, more health and well-being for the toiling masses.

It should be clear that already the workers and farmers of the Soviet Union are sure of their future and that the new plans adopted at the 17th Party Congress now guarantee a rich future for the whole toiling population. In a sense, the second Five Year Plan just adopted means "the cashing in" on the results of the first Five Year Plan, while simultaneously continuing the basic progress to reap more results in the years to come. All this utterly annihilates the argument of the bourgeois theoreticians that Socialism destroys incentives to progress, and reduces everybody to a dead level, that workers cannot manage industry, etc.

The Congress itself is a magnificent exhibition of democratic rule thout wasted motion, solving the age-old problem of democracy versus

In the absence of any groups and classes with ulterior motives, and thus in the absence of any factions, the delegates unanimously adopted the theses and all the amendments of the Second Plan. Furthermore, the delegates themselves, mostly from strategic points in the country's onomy, are a cross-section of the country's industry and agriculture, with the heads of trusts appearing in debate on an equal footing with workers from the factories which they administer, and this gives the surance that each delegate will be a powerful rallying point in his ocality when he returns home to gather all the forces around him for the carrying through of the decisions.

It is significant that the Congress, while recognizing that the results have shown that workers can manage industry, and are acquiring mastery of the most advanced technique, nevertheless, emphasizes the necessity for still further progress of such mastery and provides for tens of thousands of new engineers educated from the ranks of the proletariat and peasantry, and hundreds of thousands of new technicians, with a complete technical education for every worker.

Before the whole world, the Congress opens up a perspective of absolutely unlimited future material and cultural progress, on the basis of the enormous gains already made,

Party Members! Send in Articles, Letters, Questions in Convention Discussion

Why the Open Letter Is Not Carried Out In the Railroad Concentration Districts

EDITORIAL NOTE-The followng is the first of two articles dealing with concentration tasks and applying the Open Letter in the railroad industry. The second will be published in tomorrow's Daily Worker. These articles raise in a concrete way important problems of work among railroad workers. In connection with the pre-convention discussion we urge Party members in the railroad industry to send in articles, letters and questions for publication. In view of the strike hallot being taken on the Chicago & Northwestern Railway, indicative of the rising tide of struggle among allway workers, concentration work on railroads becomes of the highest importance. Send in your entributions to this discussion.

As a result of our increased activity, 26 new railroad groups have been formed, many of which are beginning to function. The sale of Unity News, official organ of the Railroad Brotherhoods Unity

Movement, has almost doubled. In certain district, like Milwaukee and the Far West, credit for the improvement in the work is, to a large extent, due to the active help and guidance of the Party. But the same cannot be said of work in the Concentration Districts. It surely cannot be said of District 8, which includes Chicago and St. Louis, the two largest railroad centers in the country and in the world.

Both of these articles pointed out that for St. Louis the discussion on this point, admitted its most important concentration from the point of view of the Open Letter is railroad work But months after the Open Letter this fact remained a mystery to the leadership of the Party Sub-District Committee. turally it likewise remains unknown to the membership in St. Louis.

Work In Lodges Not An End In Itself
St. Louis and District 8 have often boasted of having a railroad nucleus on the most strategic road in that territory. This nucleus is supposed to have enough influence to control a lodge on the road. However, if this is how we control the lodges then it isn't something to boast of. On an average, ten workers attend lodge meetings, and often there is no quorum (seven members required), and then meetings are not held at

In Bloomington, another one of those numerous points in which railroad men constitute the largest and most important groups of workers, and which is an important railroad center, I found that we have only two Party members who are former as those where the reactionaries hold railroad men. activity among railroad workers, the tuation is little better than exlained above. As far as the Units and mass organizations in these territories, the Sections and District Committees of the Party are concerned, as well as the leadership in the mass organizations, railroad concentration is not being carried out! The reason for this situation is not that the comrades do not want to do railroad work. In Bloomington, in St. Louis, where the first elementary steps in the situation were clarified for the leading comrades, in one of the concentration units in Chicago, where special attention HAS been given, we are beginning to overcome our isolation in the railroad industry The reason for our failure to make eadway among railroad workers resolves itself around the fact that concentration requires a change, a real departure from our accustomed ethods of work. It requires an understanding of what we mean by concentration in important industries, and also how to concentrate on

THE Party pre-convention discussion will have the greatest effectiveness and results only if the whole Party membership is drawn into it and contributes to it in some way or other.

Several discussion articles have already been published. Up to the convention, the Daily Worker will continuously publish more. We especially urge Party members in basic industries to send letters, articles or questions. These contributions should deal with the 13th Plenum Resolution, application of the Open Letter, or raise questions for answer or inclusion in the Resolution now being prepared for the 8th Convention of our Party.

T SHOULD be the task of the leading comrades to urge Party members not used to writing, or timid about participating in the discussion, to write. They should take the initiative to stimulate the discussion, to prevail on Party members who can contribute to the discussion because of their participation in mass work, in factory or trade union activities,

In preparing for the Eighth Convention of our Party, every Party member should study the 13th Plenum Resolution We print below the first four main tasks for mass work and the strengthening

Women Who Work

QUITE a few letters have come from working-class women on the column that appeared some time back discussing the relations between man and wife in the revolutionary movement.

Maybe you will remember Comrade Stanley's interesting description of the working man who developed a class consciousness and became a sturdy and loyal fighter for proletarian justice, while his wife stayed at home and became more and more resentful and reactionary.

What many women say is that the proletarian husband has also a few things the matter with him. He doesn't give his wife a chance to go to an occasional meeting at night. Why shouldn't he stay home and mind the klds, once in a while, they ask?

And it is true; if there is one thing that proletarian housewives need it is an occasional vacation. They need to get away from the home, and view broader horizons. They develop the shut-in, stale feeling that is so bad for anyone. Working class men must begin to give their wives a break. Believe it or not, it isn't an easy thing to learn. There are so many old habits of mind to be fought and overcome, both on the side of men as well as women. The bourgeois system trains us to look down on women from the time we are small boys. You can't weed out such feelings overnight, but every real revolutionist must always try to make himself over into a new kind of human being.

Writes Grace Hutchins

WE WILL carry on this discussion in further columns, we hope. Meanwhile here is a mighty good letter from Comrade Grace Hutchins, of the Labor Research Bureau, on this theme. She mentions the fact that some of the members of the Marine Workers Industrial Union kidded Comrade Tony Minerich of the miners because he had written an article about organizing the miners' wives and daughters.

I don't think this reflects the attitude of all the mine workers on this subject. If it did, it would show a very low state of political development, one unworthy of the leadership of any important group of workers.

But here is Comrade Hutchins' letter:

The Wrong Kind of Humor

COMRADE TONY MINERICH of the National Miners Union wrote a fine article in the Daily Worker on organizing the wives and daughters and sisters of miners in Women's Auxiliaries. It showed real understanding on the part of a man comrade concerning the importance of women in the class struggle.

"Then something happened that I'm telling you about because of what you wrote in your column of Jan. 4, 1934. You said:

"'I trust a few of the women will sit down and tell him [Comrade Stanley, whose letter you quoted] and the rest of us what can be done about the matter.'-of housewives and their husbands

"When Comrade Tony reached New York the other day, he met up with some of the comrades from the Marine Workers Industrial Union. And what do you think they said to him? This is what they said, with scorn in the tone of their voices:

"'Why, Tony, so you've taken to writing on the women!"

"In telling us about it, Comrade Tony said almost apologetically "'I couldn't help it, you know. The union assigned me to write the article on that subject!

"'Now along comes the resolution of the Executive Committee of the Communist International and says it is important to organize women because another imperialist war has already begun in some parts of the world and is spreading fast; men workers will be drafted for the armies and women workers will be sent in greater numbers into the war industries to take the men's places.

"But, now, I ask you, Comrade Mike, how are we going to organize the wives and daughters and sisters of the men workers, if our own comrades take the attitude that it is something like a disgrace for a man to talk or write about organizing women?

"International Women's Day is coming along-March 8. Literature is ready for distribution: Lenin's statements on the importance of organizing women, as told so vividly by Comrade Clara Zetkin; some pamohlets on the subject of women workers in the United States in relation to war and to the class struggle, And a book of some 275 pages, called Women Who Work (International Publishers, 381 Fourth Ave. New York, $1), ready Feb. 20, the first book in the United States to treat of the subject from the Marxist viewpoint.

"Men comrades like those marine workers who razzed Comrade Tony will find hemselves described in the book as follows:

"'As a result of the ruling class propaganda, among some of the men workers who should know that their strength lies in working class solidarity, there still exists an attitude of superiority toward women

"And there's some more about them—which they can read in the book. "Now, Comrade Mike, pitch in and tell the men comrades to help distribute literature for International Women's Day and NOT to be ashamed to speak and write on the subject of organizing the women.

"Our Lenin," Book For Children, Out

At last boys and girls of all ages can read of Lenin's life and work in "Our Lenin," by Ruth Shaw and Harry Alan Potamkin, released today by International Publishers. Vivid and understandable, the text is enlivened by 65 drawings by William Siegel at his best. Outstanding events in Lenin's life are interwoven into the life of Ivan, the peasant boy, and Vera, child of a city textile worker. Step by step they follow Lenin's activity among the students, the hanging of Lenin's brother, Sasha, for attempted assas-sination of the Tsar. They are in-spired by Lenin's bold stand before the Tsarist court when he is arrested for revolutionary activities. They meet him as a teacher, organizer, revolutionary leader of the poor of town and country.

With an attractive two-color cover,

"Our Lenin" is based on recollections of Lenin's childhood written some years ago by his sister and on Krupskaya's "Reminiscences of Lenin." The text was revised by Harry Alan Potamkin.

THE CONVERSION OF BOBBIE RAWLINS

A STORY OF U. S. FASCISTS

By GEACE LUMPKIN

(Author of "To Make My Bread")

DURING the time when Elimer Jackson and his crowd were making money out of the taxpayers of our county, at the time when the taxpayers were beginning to wake up to what was going on, suddenly there sprung up a great religious revival in and around our city.

Elmer Jackson, President of the Merchants National Bank; Jim Peabody, County Treasurer; Ed Ramsey, our Mayor, and the others belonging to the ring, gave money for the revivals. They urged people at church, at schools, and in the newspapers to support the religious revival that was sweeping over the country. They spoke about God and eternal salvation. There were three separate and dif-

Some Party Tasks and the 13th ECCI Plenum Resolution

OMINOUS rumblings of major struggles among the hundreds of thousands of railroad workers in this country, connected with the New York taxi strike, the series of hotel strikes, indicate a new wave of Inflation, which is eating the heart out of the meager pay envelopes of the workers, the growing unersiness of the A. F. of L. officialdom, still further adds emphasis to the fact that the American workers are going to move to new major struggles.

Together with this we have the rising offensive of company unions as a part of the fascist drive against the workers.

All of these attacks on the workers have their deepest and most serious expression in the basic war industries; and the National Labor Board maneuvers to quash struggles in order to block interference with the Roosevelt "recovery" wage-cutting program and the rapidly developing war plans of the Roosevelt

In this situation every Party member, every reader of the Daily Worker should read and digest the 13th Plenum Resolution of the Communist International and ask how these can best be put into immediate practice to speed the revolutionary way out of the

The crux of the practical application of this resolution lies in the section entitled: "The tasks of mass work and the strengthening of the Communist Parties."

The first task, says the Resolution, is to make the content and language of agitation and the press appeal to the broadest masses of the toilers, showing the face of the Communist parties. This must be done in agitation and in action

In our struggle against the N.R.A., the inflation, hunger and fascist steps of the Roosevelt regime, in rallying and mobilizing the workers for resistance, very Party unit, every Party committee, and particuarly the Daily Worker, must address itself in language understandable to the broad masses, explaining the program of the Party, speaking in the name of the Party, showing the revolutionary way out.

COLLOWING the point on appealing to the broadest strata of the proletariat, the resolution says it is necessary to secure "within the shortest time possible a decisive turn to the work in the factories, concentrating the forces of the Party organization in the decisive enterprises and raising the political level of the leadership given by the factory nuclei to the daily class struggles."

In fighting against Lewis' N.R.A. strikebreaking, the basic requisite is to root the Party units in the coal mines. In fighting the company union drive in Weirton Steel, in Ford, in the chemical industry, be most effective is in the factories, among the workers involved, in the very heart of the bitter struggles

The past year of struggles, and the present seething discontent, show very clearly the decisive factors in the stockyards, in the Pittsburgh district (Ambridge, Homestead, Alequippa, Clairton), on the railroads (Chicago and St. Louis), in rubber, steel, chemicals, where a decisive turn to the factories must be made in order to make the Party the leading force in the struggles, winning the workers for the Party, and making effective its struggle against fascism and war.

On trade union work the resolution calls for putting an end to the opportunist, defeatist neglect of trade union work and in particular work inside the reformist trade unions and the mass fascist and Christian trade unions, in accordance with the directives given by the 12th Plenum of the E.C.C.I. on work inside the trade unions."

R ECENTLY there has been a healthy move in the Party towards an attempt to overcome the former defeatist neglect of trade union work, especially work n the A, F. of L. unions. But the beginning shows how much more is yet to be done. The railroad workers show what tremendous pressure the rank and file is putting on the leadership. The turmoil in the New York trade unions against racketeering shows how easily the rank and file can be mobilized for struggle. However, without the most persistent, unrelenting day-to-day work in the unions, throwing the whole party into this work, there can be no results The Communist Party must become the outstanding leader in organizing rank and file oppositions in the A. F. of L. unions, exposing the whole rotten strikebreaking, racketeering officialdom and its fascist services on the NR.A. commissions and on the National Labor Board.

The taxi strike in New York showed the ponderous ness with which the Party moves into action in strike struggles and trade union activities. The Socialist Party leaders plunged headlong into the strike, winning strategic posts from which they had excellent opportunities for betrayals which they used. The Trade Union Unity Council took an active part in the strike. The Party, however, showed many weaknesses in mobilization of the whole Party for partici-

All of this took place after the 13th Plenum resolution had been discussed at Central Committee, District, Section and Unit meetings. It shows that the bridge between general abstract discussion must be broken down in concrete, living activity.

ON WORK among the unemployed, the resolution says the task consists of "really developing mass work among the unemployed, carrying on an untiring fight for social insurance, for all kinds of municipal

Work among the unemployed has received an impetus from the National Convention Against Unemployment, but again it is only a spark, a beginning which must lead to a broad, mass, untiring fight for social insurance among all strata of unemployed, among all C.W.A workers, and in the A. F. of L.

For our Party the 13th Plenum resolution is a broad guide to action which becomes clothed with the flesh and blood of living revolutionary struggles only when it is concretized in action in the units, transforming the whole activity of the Party to the

It is in this light every unit should discuss the resolution, looking around it in the factories, among the masses, employed and unemployed, in the trade unions, to see how it should be applied to speed the evolutionary work and to strengthen the Communist Party as the best guarantee of its fulfillment.

Particularly in preparation for the Eighth Convention of our Party, the 13th Plenum must be made an integral and living part of the entire discussion.

Roosevelt hands over the air-mails to the army.
