The employees did not take kindly to this plan, as it was very evident that the principal object sought was the destruction of the Union Labor Hospital, thus placing the men entirely at the mercy of the companies. Consequently many of the more independent workers refused to pay the fee, and fo rithis

Therefore, Messrs. Quinn and Kehoe troughed that the defendant be enjoined from exercising such boycott, as being in yiolation of the conspiracy laws.

The attorneys for the company insisted that such discrimination was not a violation of the law, and that the company had a right to discharge its men at any time and for any reason. As all

It is hoped that the case will come to a climax upon that date, as the question involved is of supreme importance to the union men of this section.

To show that the hospital fee exacted by the companies is nothing but a graft and does not guarantee the employees free treatment, the case of Harold Warren is cited. Mr. Warren worked in the mills of the Little River Redwood dent, who conducted the vote, wired in the mills of the Little River Redwood at once to Chlcago saying that all the locals in the United States would rather strike than permit the work he was seriously injured by a piece of timber. He was taken to the Prinity Hospital at Aracata, a town not far from Eureka, and, although he held a ticket for his hospital fee which emilled him to free treatment at said hespital, when he left the institution on May 20, he was handed a bill for $297.

"Mr. Bryan will ask us to insert in the platform a provision that all trials growing out of injunction hearings shall be pefore a jury. On these two points the Democrats of the West, as well as of the East, are ready to take issue with Mr. Bryan and save him from himself, or at least make an effort to save the party from such mistakes. To me' it seems to be worse than folly, it seems almost treason to try to change the law, to invade the province of the courts and to make exception in favor of one class of laborers. I am convinced that seventy-five per cent. of the workingmen of this country are opposed to the idea. On this issue alone the party favoring such a plank would lose the state of Colorado by 35,000."

"Also when he was on the bench he rendered a very illuminating opinion on this subject. He called my attention to that opinion on one occasion.

Has Very Original Plan to Save Labor.

WASHINGTON. June 29.—The American Federationist for July contains the following editorial by Samuel Gompers:

"So Congress has adjourned; it has turned a deaf car to Labor's appeal for relief from the most tyrannous and intolerable situation in which the workers have been placed in a century. The protest which the great conference of the officers and other representatives of the laborers' and farmers' organizations presented to Congress has been ignored, so contemptuously ignored that even those of them who were primarily responsible for the course pursued themselves were astounded at their own andacity, to brazen was their conduct.

"Labor asked Congress for an amend and which are of little or no value, but refused the slightest favorable consideration to secure the important rights which the toilers demand and which are so essential to their protection, advancement and wells."

"Congress, like the courts, was not unwilling to guarantee to the workers deademic "rights" which are of little or no value, but refused the slightest favorable consideration to secure the important rights which the toilers demand and which are so essential to their protection, advancement and wells."

MEN TO LEAVE UNIONS

Special to The Call.

PITTSBURG, June, 29 .- The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is taking advantage of the present industrial depression to break up some of the smaller labor unions with which its mployees are connected, and has given the men the alternative of leaving either the unions or the employ of

ing either the unions or the employ of the company.

At the Verona shops of the Cone-maugh division of the Pennsylvania Railroad about a month age each man was asked whether or not he was a member of a labor union.

Now a quiet hint-has been given the local men to leave the unions.

local men to leave the unions.
Although there were murmurings against the demand of the railroad, the men, most of whom have families, decided to bow to the will of the officials and all returned to work as usual this morning.

nual convention in Denver. Undoubt-edly it will be the most important gathering that that organization has ever held. A delegation from the United Mine Workers will attend the Denver convention for the purpose of submitting a proposition to amalga-mate or form a close alliance between these two powerful organizations. At the Indianapolis convention of the United Mine Workers last January W. D. Haywood, formerly general secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, urged that action be taken to sring the two bodies into one great istically received and a committee was elected to visit the Denver convention and obtain an official expresion from the Western men rega he proposition submitted by Hay wood. At the present time an agree-nent exists between the two organi-cations to render mutual assistance, and many of the active members in ome form of combination. If satisfactory arrangements can be made and the coal and metalliferous miners are merged, the new body will be, by ong odds, the largest organization in the country and one of the most powerful labor combinations in the It is believed that by the time the details can be completed the new order will have a combined mempership of fully 400,000 men. The rubber magnates have become fabulously rich during the past decade, and like a fat hog that rolls in a swill trough, they canthe would demand an increase seven cents a week in wages, and that would mean just that much less for the "Christian gentlemen" who have seen divinely ordained to run the rubber business and skin their work-ng people. Of course, it might be cted that the rubber magnates have in operation the very best skin ning methods that greedy minds can levise. Thus the Diamond Rubber Co. has a piece system and requires the production of a certain number of rubber tires at a fixed price as a day's work. Then comes a "premium" system, which provides that after a day's work is complete the employee must work on for half price until the whistle blows. If an employee turns out only the number of tires required in his "day's" work and does not get in any half-price work, he is accused of restricting the output, loafing, etc., and is discharged. ## United States "THE SCARLET SHADOW."

Walter Hurt's great novel of the Social Revolution, has compelled the praise of the capitalist press. Hundreds of leading papers throughout this country and Europe have reviewed it in space varying from half a column to half a page. A Great Britain edition has been brought out, and it has been translated into French. Here are a few brief extracts from comments of the critics:

"The Scarlet Shadow" has the center of the literary stage.

"It is something new in American literature, very new.—St. Louis Republic.

It is a subject worthy a Balzac or a Hugo, and this

It is a subject worthy a Balzac or a Hugo, and this remarkable writer is in many respects equal to either.—

Cleveland Recorder. An excellent remance and a capital tale.—Brooklyn

To say that it is the literary sensation of the hour is not overstating the matter.—Albany Press.

Walter Hurt has gained a place for himself as a writer of distinct individuality.

* He is master of a style

Washington Star.

His descriptive passages have in them the brilliancy and flow of a polished writer, and time and again he forces one's recognition and respect through the sheer beauty of his style.—San Francisco Call.

It is a book that will grip the reader. * * We know the general opinion is that the reviewer does not read the books he reviews. Be that as it may, we have read this one. Se great is its interest that we have read it twice and sketched it through half a dozen times.—Denver News.

dozen times.—Denver News. Walter Hurt is by long odds the most entertaining Socialist writer the day, and he is also one of the ablest.—New York Morning Telegraph.

OUR SHORT STORY.

GROWN IN A GARDEN. yard. She slipped through the halls to the other apartment, and in response to her timid ring the old lady appeared. She smiled as Bertha made her required.

It was probable that Bertha never would have become interested in the would have become interested in the man across the way had it not been for the flowers. Then from interest in the window-garden, her attention was turned to the young man whose pale face she saw so often amid the blooms.

Bertha had her own little window Bertha had her own little windowgarden in the one window on the court

mornings, and her geranium slips grew with such a rapidity that her heart took great pride in them. They had engrossed her completely until the young man across the way set out morning placing it in position.

Bertha regarded enviously his handsome tile box. It was evidently an some tile box. It was evidently an expensive product of the shops, while expensive product of the shops, while hers was but a zinc box, made for her by a tinsmith. Yet she found some consolation in the realization that her garden had a three weeks' start, and it would be long before her rival could hope to equal her own gorgeous blooms.

But when the sun had passed over to the other side of the court, and Bertha went to water her plants, she started in amazement, for there in the other box were half a dozen lilles. They were not very tall, but it was the other box were half a dozen lilles. They were not very tall, but it was evident that they were expensive, and Bertha felt a fine contempt for a man who had to purchase his plants already grown. Half the fun of gardening was the care needed in making things grow. There was no real pleasure in plants purchased from a florist, and from contempt she assed to pity and from contempt she passed to pity—though not yet was pity akin to

The next day a fresh surprise was prepared for her. When she looked out across the court to see if the plants would grow or had already witted down, she saw that the lilies were twice as large as they had been the day before and she smiled with superiority as she realized that in all probability the original lilies had died and had been replaced by new and stronger plants.

and had been replaced by new and stronger plants.

The third day there was a third, and larger, lot with the blooms; exquisite blooms that must have cost a great deal of money. More than ever Bertha felt a contempt for a man who was dependent upon a florist.

The strange part of it was that though a gentle-faced old lady came frequently to the window to watch the blooms, she did not touch the plants, tui left the work entirely to her son. Once or twice Bertha saw the two standing at the window, and apparen'ly laughing over the difficulty they experienced in bringing blooms to perfection, for as the days passed it apparently augming over the dimenuity they experienced in bringing blooms to perfection, for as the days passed it was evident that there was short life for the plants in the box across the way. Not a week passed that the plants were not changed once or twice and sometimes nearly every day. It was evident that the young man was ashamed of his gardening, for Bertha saw that he worked no more over the plants, though she spent much time tending her own little garden, which was blooming in a manner that filled her soul with pride.

Unconsciously she had become greatly interested in the young man across the way, and in his attempts at floriculture, so she longed to give him the assistance that his perseverance deserved. Had she ever met the old lady in the hall she would have spoken to her, but they used separate elevances. lady in the hall she would have spoken to her, but they used separate elevators and never encountered each other. Probably Bertha would have worried about the garden all summer had there not come the day of her shock. She was tending her own plants when the young man came to the window accompanied by another man who gianced admiringly at the plants and leaned over, at the other's suggestion, to inhale the fragrance of the blooms.

As he did so Bertha very nearly fell As he did so Bertha very nearly fell out of the window in her astonishment, for the lilies vanished utterly from the box, and a very much surprised young man turned to his friend. As he did so there appeared as suddenly the half-grown plants only to vanish in turn and give way to the full blooms again.

MIND'S POWER OVER MATTER TESTED

The power of mind over matter is illustrated in our recurreity experi-ments, made by Dr. Otto von der Pfordten, who believes he has shown that the action of electricity in the hu appeared. She smiled as Bertha made her request.

"You will have to ask Ned," she said. "I don't suppose that he will object to explaining how he grows flowers, but it is his secret. I will ask him when he comes in."

Bertha backed away protesting in embarrassment that she had no desire to penetrate secrets, but late in the afternoon there was a ring at her own bell and she opened the door to face the old lady.

"My nephew will be only too glad to show you his plants," she said with her gentle smile. "Will you come with me?" tralized by the state of the mind. As-pinals has already noted that electricians who, when asleep, have touched danger-ous wires, have suffered no injury ex-cept a burn; and Jellinek found that an ordinarily deadly current did not harm rabbits when they were chloroformed. Of greater interest still are the cases where the action of the current is neutralized by a man's strained expectation Electricians, he says, often touch parts of the machinery to ascertain if there is a current in them, and while this conscious and deliberate act me?"
Bertha was startled as she was ushered into the apartment by her conductress. It seemed like the cavern of some sorceress, with its results in no harm, unintentional contact with a less powerful current proves cavern of some sorcersss, with its mystic symbols and apparatus. But the young man who came for-ward to greet her looked little like a fatal. In experimenting on himself Jellinek found that an unexpected shocks of 350 volts was terrible, whereas an expected shock of 500 volts made little impression. But this was a bagatelle compared with the exhibition of courage given by Herr von Dobrowoisky, who broke a wire containing 30,000 volts, and nicked up one and of it is ward to greet her looked little like a wizard.

"My aunt tells me that f have roused your curiosity with my foolish tricks." he said pleasantly as he led her to the window. "Like most mysteries the solution is absurdly simple.

"I am interested in magic and dabble a bit at it in an amateur way. We never have had luck with flowers, and I decided that this year we should have what we wanted. It is just a magical trick. The plants are made of very thin tissue and are infiated with an air pump. There are three sets for the different sizes. I can turn the air into either set."

Bertha's face fell as she saw how easily she had been deceived, but she found the magical apartment fascinating in its surprises, and before the tricks wire exhausted she had become well acquainted with the old lady and with Ned Tomlin as well; so well, indeed, that when, some months later, he suggested that she preside over his window gafden and grow real flowers instead of pneumatic ones, the answer was entirely satisfactory to Ned. volts, and picked up one end of it in the presence of several dismayed ex-perts without suffering the least harm. "To do such a thing one must be abso-intely fearless of death, or else one must have the force of an engineer who has learned to control the powerful electric fluid." The force, Dr. von der Pforden declares, is will power, and he adds: "There is something imposing in this idea that the will power in such a case opposes itself to death as an equal force and comes out triumphant." Huseland was convinced that most ner-yous disorders are caused by mental influence and passiveness, a week yielding bodily sensations and impressions. he suggested that she preside over his window gafden and grow real flowers instead of pneumatic ones, the answer was entirely satisfactory to Ned.
"We'll withdraw the hot-air garden," he cried exultantly. "I guess it's the first time anyone ever grew a wife on a plant of that sort! I grew a finer blossom than I ever dared dream of." And he cites Pinel, who found that during the excitement of the French revobeen weak and sickly, became healthy and strong, this being true especially among the indolent members of the aristocracy, whose nervous troubles disappeared entirely.

T'e Japanese have a special method of training the will from early child-lifood, and it has been plausibly argued that it was this study of will power more than anything else that enabled them to overcome the Russians.—Chicago Tribune. The edge of the world, if such a thing be, lies hardly a rifle-shot away from one of the centres of the world liself—the city of New York.

The Palisades, those mighty walls whereon the annals of the centuries are graveh—what an edge of the world their lips present to him who comes, perhaps at night, to their rough-hewn elevation! In no place other than this near proximity to man and one of his greatest cities could a physical feature so profoundly vast and impressive be so hidden from the world. Their counterpart cannot by found in all the world; and yet the Palisades are almost unexploited and unknown to the globe-circling, sighthunting public that yearly traverses the continents or seas to gaze at things less wonderful in some distantifield of nature's marvellous achievements. For little does any one know of these Titanic walls who has merely seen them from the Hudson. SOMETHING PERTAINING "CHRISTIAN SOCIALISTS."

A regrettable result of the recent conference in this city of the Christian Socialist Fellowship is the avidity with which the capitalist press has seized upon the abbreviated phrase of "Christian Socialist," the indiscriminate application of which implies that the camp of Socialism is definitely divided into Christians and pagans. No such distinction

The official designation of the subsidiary organization in question is "The Christian Socialist Fellowship," and the title of "Christian Socialist" as applied to its members is purely a term of convenience made nearly necessary by the construction of the organization's name.

Socialism has nothing whatever to do with the individual religious ideas of its adherents, and only the ignorant or the mendacious ever contends that it does. Socialism is purely an economic movement with a political program, its political phase being merely a means to an end. It concerns itself only with the material betterment of mankind, believing that moral advancement will inevitably result from improved social conditions. It is the conclusion of scientific thinkers that correct economics is the basis of all ethics.

Having no arbitrary relation to spiritual affairs, the Socialist party therefore, in common with the Democratic, Republican, Populist and Prohibition parties, includes persons of all the variant forms and differing degrees of religious belief or disbelief. Among its members are to be found atheists and deists, spiritualists and materialists, agaostics and dogmatists, Christians and millionaires. If a number of Socialists wish to organize and promote a religious movement, they can properly do so only as a group of individuals and not as Socialists; and their activities along this line are alien to Socialism. Because they are alien, however, it does not follow that they are antagonistic; it is merely that they have no real relation to the Marxian propaganda.

The foregoing statement is exactly true, whatever to the contrary may be said even by Socialists. It is an unfortunate fact, and injurious to the movement, that many well-intentioned Socialists have no correct comprehension of the Socialist philosophy-no adequate grasp of its basic principles, its constructive fundamentals, its vital significance or its ultimate consequences. They lack the philocophic mind which makes possible a scientific interpretation of the re tal process. Socialism contains within itself the elements of its own analysis. Its factors are as veritable as those of mathematics, and by the precisionist the integrity of its propositions can be demonstrated with all the exactness of a problem in Euclid.

It may be true that among Socialists will be found a greater proportion of men who have rid themselves of hide-bound religious orthodoxy and cut loose from their creedal moorings. But if they no longer believe in such pleasant things as infant damnation, they not be too severely chided for their superior intelligence.

It is apropos also to state that Socialism does not directly concern itself with the various social problems which are incidental and not fundamental to the existing economic system. Its scope is too comprehensive for detail. Being universal in its purpose, its program is infinitely inclusive. Socialists recognize the fact that most institutions under the present order, being the offspring of that order, and naturally partaking of parental characteristics, are necessarily defective. No product can greatly transcend the quality of its origin. So, while the mission of Socialism is the complete reconstruction of the social fabric and the consequent regeneration of the human race, Socialists believe that under a rational system all human relations will infallibly adjust themselves to the standard of rightness. The unfailing impulse of society is toward self-conservation; and under the opportunities of an actual democracy, while action on any phase of the social welfare cannot be predicted with precision, the wisdom of the majority can be relied upon always to do that which will result in the greatest general benefit.

In the minds of all reasonable persons this explanation should definitely dispose of the question as to whether Socialism will rob the individual, destroy the religious impulse and disrupt the home, which effects are so persistently charged against it by its enemies.

One of the reasons given by his friends why Roosevelt would not accept the nomination is that he needs a rest. So does the country.

BY WALTER HURT.

The blessings of a brighter day bloom from a perished past, And glad and golden is the way that leads us on at last Into the asphodelian lands where fadeless flowers are spread To greet our feet, by hallowed hands of our remembered dead

The faith that once was in eclipse, wrapped by the clouds of wrong Till it has risen to redeem the race from its despairs And realize that splendid dream of our unanswered prayers

Where once the fields were drenched with red beneath the blackest night Now greenest grasses grow instead, and lilies blossom v And like a vibrant silver bell now rings the robin's note Where once the battle-song of hell belched from the cannon's throat

And garlands placed the wounds above have hidden all their scars We lightly climb life's sunny slopes, where naught the music mars That lifts the heart to higher hopes and sets it mong the stars.

Our feet have found the solid rock of broader brotherhood: Our souls have safely met the shock, and all its woes withstood: The newer birth is ours at last, and nothing now remains To point us to the polgnant past—its passions and its pains.

The darkness of the years is gone, the shadows hurry by While fingers of a damask dawn spread beauty on the sky. On haloed heights a rarer glow shall crown the heart's demands. et springs shall fairer flow from out life's bitter lands
