BOHN DENOUNCES SLEEK REFORMERS

In Lecture at Lyric Hall Speaker Scores Hypocritical Capitalist Politicians.

"It is fashionable for everyone who thinks himself separated from the herd by a bath to howl against the rottenness and corruption in Tammany Hall, but I refuse to join the hue and cry. ecause attacks on Tammany are futile, as it represents big capitalistic interests. True, it is a gang of thieves and corruptionists, but our cry must be against the people who are behind Tammany, against the system which is esponsible for it. Instead of de-ouncing Tammany, we turn to the osses in the shop and we say to them. responsible You who pay girls $5 a week and force them to prostitute themselves in order to earn $15, you and your kind are responsible for Tammany! The foregoing startling declaration was made by Frank Bohn in his lec on "The Historical Development of the Poitician" at the Socialist Forum under the auspices of Local New York in Lyric Hall yesterday

Bohn traced the development of the New York politician by exhibiting the character of five men, beginning with Alexander Hamilton, then taking up Aaron Burr and Martin Van Buren and three later and more perfectly developed types of the politician name-ly, Richard Croker, Charles F. Mur-phy and William Randolph Hearst. .25 He carefully explained the difference between the old aristocratic politician 2.00 like Hamilton and the later ones, who, like Martin Van Buren, after the introduction of universal manhood suffrage were forced to face both ways rve the capitalists during the year and befuddle the minds of the work ers in order to dupe them at election

Hamilton Rival of Hanna.

Speaking of Alexander Hamilton, Bobn said: "Writing to a friend in 1801. Hamilton declared that the workers must be organized in the interest of the property owners. Thus he more than a hundred years ago anticipated the Civic Federation. So, you see, the bonor and the glory of, having evolved the Civic Federation does not all belong to Mark Hanna and lieutenants, for Hamilton declared that he would have the workers organized and taught chemistry and Yesterday they had invited friends to politics. I do not know what kind of the workers taught, but I do know the kind of politics he desired them to daughter. Iola, came running down He would have them taught crying "She's shot, she's shot. the same thing the Civic Federation teaches—that the interests of capital and labor are identical." and labor are identical."

The speaker then took up the early and calling for a doctor. The shot labor movement and showed how the had gone through her heart, however, politicians emasculated it. "The first and she was dead before an ambulance great rush of the working class for its arrived. organization of a labor party which had for its motto the abolition of chattel and wage slavery.' During the period between 1830 and 1834 the labor party grew very rapidly, but then both the Democrats and the Whigs tried to gain control of it, and 1.00 finally the Whig Labor party practi-.25 cally wiped out the bona fide labor

"Marcin Van Buren, who controlled 1.00 the Whig party, was unexcelled in his trickery. Becoming President, he dethe dog-just as the Republicans and Democrats of today."

Tammany Agency of Ryan.

The speaker then told of an attack Tammany by Mark Twain, in which that gentleman paraphrased Edmund Burke's indictment of Lord Hastings, charging that Tammany is omposed of corrupt and crooked men and ought to be dismissed from pub-lic service. Twain quoted, the speaker said, from an anti-Croker leaflet the following statement: "We hold responsible for the fact that the "We hold you ernment of New York has been sold 1.00 to a gang of thieves.' Why, the same 3.50 condition prevails in every city

"Charity" to the Rescue.

While in this plight the sumptuous building of the New York Infant Asylum, with its many rooms, many turses and great cost to the city, rose before him. Charity, with its luring amiability, smiled cunningly, and, after much hesitation, many tears and with great reluctance, the father sur-rendered the younger of his two little ones to that institution. He and the lder child made their home with his wife's mother, Mrs. L. Sadofsky, at the above-mentioned address. Little Louis, not quite three weeks old, became one of the 800 little inmates of the New York Infant Asy-lum, Amsterdam avenue and West 61st street, and subject to its "rules 61st street, and subject to its "rules and regulations." To those who would give but lack the means I hope I have said no sharp or unkind word. To those who could give but did not, whatever I may have printed, it has been my desire and intent not to embarrass them, but to make The Call's emergency so co spicuous that it could not be overlocked and to present the merits of the Wage Fund so clearly as to compel the approval of their judgment. Whatever words I may have used, in my thoughts I never have suspected myse f of any right to spend their mone; But so far as I was able I was most anxiously earnest that The Call should have a foremost place in their though s when they put money in their pocket or took it out. Throughout the period covered by the Wage Fund, and notwithstanding my singleness of purpo e in the effort to help and Establish The Call. I have myself been fearful and repeatedly have called the attention of readers to the fact that The Call and its mission, though of incalculable importance and value to the Labor Movement, were not the Labor Movement. The part cannot be greater than the whole.

The Labor Movement is made of many parts. Its three grand divis

The Labor Movement is made of many parts. Its three grand divisions come under the headings of Agitatior, Education and Organization. The Call is a great part of the great grand division of Education. But The Call cannot be greater than the Labor Movement nor can it (or any other single factor) be greater or so great as the (ivision of Education itself. There are weekly and other Socialist and Labor periodicals which require and merit sacrifice and support. Also, there is the Chicago Daily Socialist. From the day that the Wage Fund opened till the present hour I have been fearful that in some way The Call might get a dollar that more properly belonged to the Chicago Daily Socialist, and, great as was its need, I would not see The Call thrive at the expense of other sorely needed units of the Movement.

needed units of the Movement.

The Wage Fund was started practically with the year's political campaign. In addition to the organization of the Socialist Party itself and the great body of trade and labor unions, there is the many times larger army of the UNORGANIZED—to be organized. THEY MUST BE ORGANIZED, Comrade. You and I must Organize them. The Call must educate them. We must get them to be a part of the Socialist Party political organization and they must be mustered into economic labor organizations at the same time. In all this work The Call will help in the future as it has in the past, except that it will help more. Well, comrades, you know how I have appealed to you to give your dollar to The Call. But more than once I have warned you not to give to The Call the dollar that belonged to the Socialist Party, whether as dues or as a contribution to the campaign fund.

belonged to the Socialist Party, whether is dues or is a contribution to the campaign fund.

The Socialist Party is greater than The Call. In these last few words asking contributions to The Call Wage Fund I again test you that you must not forget the needs of the Socialist Party. I have not desired and I sincerely hope that no penny has been given to the Wage Fund that could have done the Great Cause more service e-sewhere.

THE GRAND THREE THOUSAND.

At this moment I cannot tell exactly, but so far about THREE THOU-SAND have given to the Wage Fund. Had it not been for their sacrifice you would not now be reading The Call. There would be no Call. I do not try to thenk them now. But, reader, I ask you to read The Daily Call and The Sunday Call and see what can be done by a few. For, rela-tively to the whole number of Socialists in the United States, 3,000 are in-

THE FOUR HUNDRED THOUSAND.

Last election day more than 400,000 men voted the Socialist &cket. Some of them who are unable to give to the Wage Fund, some wisely give all their means to other forms of Socialist work, and some do not wish to do more than cast an annual vote against capitalism. And there are some who do not head because they do not hear The Call's appeal. But those who can hear and heed and understend. I sak to carefully observe the wonderful resultant of the work and sacrifice of THE CALL'S THREE THOUSAND, and themselves to become a part of the Second Three Thousend. With another Three Thousend like the first, The Call would be able to undertake and successfully carry out enything short of the miracles of journalism. Reader, be one of that Second Call Brigade.

TODAY IS YOUR LAST CHANCE.

Except for those at a distance, contributions to The Cell Wage Fund must be made TODAY. I have nothing to add to what I have already said. Do your level best, render. Address The Call, 442 Pearl street, New York ity. Merk your letter "Wage Fund." The date of the Souvenir Edition has not been set. It will be issued soon. Tomorrow letters from contributors.

TO OUT-OF-TOWN CONTRIBUTORS.

You will be allowed to have your contribution entered in the Souvenir Edition if it is mailed on the day this issue of The Call reaches you.

For instance, New York comrades get Monday's Call today (Monday) by midnight, or, if sent by mail, the envelope must bear a postmark showng it was malled Monday. Comrades in Chicago, St. Louis and other places do not get today's

Call till Tuesdey. They will have till Tuesday to mail their contribution to the Wage Fund, and if the envelope containing their contribution show to the Wage Fund, and if the cutelope containing their contribution shows nostmark of Tuesday, the 19th, their names will appear in the Souvenir Edition of The Call with the others.

So Denver comrades will not receive their Monday's Call till Wednesday, and their contributions to the Wage Fund will be entered in the Souvenir Edition of The Call if the postmark shows that they were mailed in Wednesday, October 20, and so on. I shall take no snap judgment to p you out.

This is only fair. It gives friends of The Ca'l living at a distance the chance as those at home. They received the first notice after the others, and are allowed that difference in time for the close.

GOLDWIN SMITH ON SOCIAL CLASSES.

Let us for a moment turn aside from the municipal campaign snarl. Let us shut our ears to the revelations and the reciprocal accusations and the torrents of talk intended to confuse the electors. Let us for a moment recollect that whoever wins-Tammany with it. Gaynor, the Republicans with their Bannard, or Hearst with his Republicans-the city of New York will remain exactly what it is-an aggregation of human beings to be looted by one or another set of looters. Let us also note that the fate of Socialism, the position of the working class in society, is not to be decided by this campaign. The Socialist movement is not of today or yesterday, and its goalthe rule of society by the working class-will not be reached until other and far more potent enemies will have been met and overcome than the professional looters and swindlers who masquerade under this or that name or label. Let us for a moment forget the whole sickening business and listen to the questions of one who is revered as a wise man among the "better elements" of the ruling class.

Goldwin Smith has written a letter to the Sun, headed "What, haps as radical a program as a "prac-Precisely, Is Socialism?" Under this general heading there are a number of specific questions concerning the nature of Socialism, as well as a number of assertions concerning the nature of man and society in general. If we are to answer the former, however briefly, we shall have neither the space nor the time to criticize the latter. Yet these are so fundamental to Goldwin Smith's hostility to Socialism that we must refer, in however cursory a manner, to at least two Goldwin Smith is neither an ignoramus nor a humbug. Our politicians and publicists, from Roosevelt and Taft to Bryan, Hearst. and "Billy" Sulzer, may be sufficiently ignorant or dishonest to deny the existence of classes in society. But Goldwin Smith frankly admits the existence of social classes. He even recognizes that this is an evil to be deplored and expresses the hope that there will not be any classes in heaven. Considering that Goldwin Smith is an agnostic, this hope obviously does not mean much. But here or earth, he says, we seem not likely to see the end of classes. And why not? Because men are not born equal: "Countless are the divergences and inequalities of capacity and character; consequently of success and position in life."

Goldwin Smith is a professional historian. He will, therefore, we trust, not regard it as an impertinence if we ask him a few historical questions.

The existence of classes in society is not a peculiar characteristic of present-day capitalist society. Not to go beyond the civilization of the West, there were in Roman society freemen and slaves, patri cians and plebeians, citizens and provincials, with their various modifications in the course of Roman history. Again in medieval Europe there were lords and serfs, nobles and base, the patricians and plebeians of the towns, guild-masters and journeymen, with their subdivisions. Would that the status of men in those times was determined by the natural "divergences and inequalities of capacity and character?" Of course not. The historian Goldwin Smith knows that the status of a man in Roman or medieval society was determined by birth, or the accident of war, or some other external influence having no relation whatever to his capacity or character. To go no deeper, the immediate cause in the formation of classes was Force, while the preservation of classes was effected through the hereditary transmission of property and privilege on the one hand and of poverty and subjection on the

This being the case with regard to older societies, why should Goldwin Smith imagine that natural capacity is the determining factor of class in our society?

There seems to be but one reason for this. In the older societies a man might be thrown out of whatever ruling class he was a member only by the accident of war, civil or foreign, or by squandering his wealth in riotous living, or by some natural accident, such as pestilence, while in capitalistic society a man may lose his fortune in work is making them south business. But what is this "business?" Is it not a species of warfare -industrial warfare, which, like all warfare, is determined largely by forces over which we have no control; that is to say, by accident?

Nor does the rise of individuals from the subject classes to the ruling ones affect the argument in any way, for this is by no means a peculiarity of capitalistic society, though generally supposed to be such. Many a Roman or Oriental slave or medieval peasant's son lators is legal. Certainly, so long as slow poisoning, for profit. rose to the highest position in the state. It is true that the transition from one class to another is more common in capitalistic than in older character of individuals. They are social causes, general characterissocieties. This is due to certain special characteristics of capitalist tics of modern society. At the very utmost, Goldwin Smith might society: the universality of industrial warfare, or competition, which say that given a certain set of social conditions (including, of course makes room for the play of numerous "accidents"; the mobilization of its class divisions), some "characters" and "capacities" will thrive property, everything having become the subject of barter and sale and while other "characters" and "capacities" will succumb: while under speculation; and the ceaseless revolutionizing of the processes of pro- other social conditions the exact opposite will happen. But that is duction, which, while destroying old fortunes, creates new ones. But something very different from the statement that classes themselves all these have clearly nothing whatever to do with the capacity or are the result of differences of capacity and character.
